BRITAIN WON'T TOLERATE SEARCH OF HER SHIPS

Franco Warned To Keeps Hands Off

Italy May Take Hand In Blockade Of Spain

BRITAIN MAY AUGMENT FLEET IN MEDITERRANEAN WATERS

London, Nov. 20.

It is understood that Great Britain will not tolerate any action by General Francisco Franco's warships outside Spain's three-mile limit if the Rightist leader attempts to enforce a blockade of Leftist ports. It would be suicidal for his ships to try to act under belligerent rights.

This means that a search of British vessels on the high seas by insurgent warships will not be tolerated. The right of search within Spanish territorial waters, moreover, is rather obscure.

Apparently, however, the Spanish Government, as such, is entitled to stop and search British ships within the three-mile limit, but Great Britain will not submit to a search by General Franco's craft either within or without territorial waters, inasmuch as he does not represent, for Britain, a recognised Government.—Reuter.

FIREMEN FEED FLAMES

London, Nov. 20.

Emphasising Britain's decision to stand by the Spanish non-intervention agreement, Mr. Anthony Eden, speaking at Leamington, said that because some firemen took a hand at feeding the flames is no reason why the whole fire-brigade should leave its posts and join in fanning Europe into a furnace.

"Our decision was the right one," he said, "and we mean to maintain it."—Reuter.

Italian Warning

Rome, Nov. 20.

Gioriale d'Italia, in an editorial, says to-day that Italy "and other strong European powers" have decided to prevent the establishment of a Red Republic in Spain, and strongly hinted that Italy would prevent Soviet steamers reaching Spanish ports.—United Press.

Britain's Policy

London, Nov. 20.

The United Press, following Mr. Anthony Eden's announcement that Great Britain would protect her shipping in the Mediterranean in the event of a blockade of Spanish ports, learns that British policy with respect to the Spanish situation includes:

1. Refusal to recognise the Rightist Junta's right to enforce a blockade;

2. Resistance of any attempt to seize or search merchantmen, as long, it is added cryptically, as the Nationalists have not been accorded the status of belligerents.

Meanwhile, Great Britain will permit her ships to enter Barcelona at their own risk, while making an effort to clarify the situation.

Mr. Eden said a communiqué explained that the Nationalists' contemplated blockade was due to the scandalous traffic in arms... carried by ships flying different flags, whose real nationality was largely Russian or Spanish."

Mr. Eden said a Nationalist note had warned foreign shipping to evacuate Barcelona "within a very short time."

Action Of Piracy

When Mr. Eden made this statement to the House of Commons, the Opposition leader, Mr. Clement Attlee, angrily declared: "As these people are rebels... would not action of the kind indicated be mere piracy? Would it be resented in Britain?"

Mr. Eden answered: "At present we have not neglected belligerent rights to either side."

This is taken as an indication that Britain will do her utmost to effect a compromise with the Rightists, averting the danger of a clash.

Four Danger Points

SUSPECT FASCIST PLOTTING RUSSIANS ACCUSE STICKLING ORGANISING TERRORISM?

Novosibirsk, Nov. 20.

Allegations that the German engineer, Stickling, and the seven Russians accused with him of sabotage in Siberian mines, had caused poison gas to be released in many shafts of the Kuznets coalmines causing workers "to die like rats" were made by a witness at the second day of the sensational trial here to-day.

The prosecution introduced two groups of witnesses. One testified that the defendants' activities were limited to spreading dissatisfaction among workers and endeavouring to undermine the Stakhanov movement in the western Siberian mines.

Other witnesses alleged there was a link between M. Leon Trotsky, banished Russian leader, and the Nazis, through Stickling, who was engaged to organise a terrorist group with the object of restoring capitalism and introducing a Fascist regime into Russia.—Reuter.

San Francisco, Nov. 20.

A United Press survey of the West Coast waterfront shows that 213 ships are tied up by the present strike, as compared with 175 last week.

Of these, 68 are lying idle in San Francisco harbour, 66 in San Pedro, 25 at Portland, 39 at Seattle, 7 at Vancouver, B.C., and eight at Honolulu.

While new conciliation moves have been brought to a standstill, union leaders are most pessimistic. Lundberg, the Seamen's Union representative in San Francisco, does not believe that a settlement is anything like imminent.—United Press.

Rome, Nov. 20.

Official messages from Addis Ababa report that an Italian column has occupied the province of Jimma, while another column has taken possession of the Judo platinum mine centre in the Wellega district, thirty-five miles north of Gore.

Practically no opposition was encountered.—Reuter.

RUSSIA REBUKES JAPAN

ANTI-COMMUNIST PACT RESENTED MAY INJURE RELATIONS

Moscow, Nov. 20.

It is officially announced that the Soviet Ambassador to the Japanese Foreign Ministry has informed the Japanese explanation of the all-day agreement between Japan and Germany—that it is designed to fight Communism—is unsatisfactory and is likely seriously to jeopardise relations between Russia and Japan.

The Ambassador added that the Soviet Government could not understand why the German Government needed the help of Japanese police, and vice versa, in order to struggle against Communism in their own country.

The communiqué adds that the Japanese Foreign Minister made no reply.—Reuter.

CARRIES BIG U.S. MAIL TO FAR EAST

New Westminster, B.C., Nov. 20.

The steamer Silver Guava has sailed from here, carrying 35,000 lbs. of American mail to Manila. Presumably some of this mail will be for Hongkong and China.

Fears that Christmas mail from the United States would be held up owing to the maritime strike have therefore been relieved. The Silver Guava is expected to deliver its consignment at Manila 19 days before Christmas.—United Press.

The red monoplane in which M. Andre Japy endeavoured to create a 60-hour solo record from Paris to Tokyo, photographed when the aviator landed at Kai Tak Airport. As he was taxi-ing across the Hongkong 'drome, M. Japy nearly sped into the mounds of snow (shown in foreground of photograph) which caused a Latvian plane to capsize yesterday. Lt. Laline, the aviator attached to the French cruiser Lamotte Picquet, clambered onto the wing of Japy's plane, and shouted a warning. Japy crashed into a mountain-side in Japan on the last stage of his record-making flight.

ULL ON MADRID WAR FRONT
GOVERNMENT CLAIMS

Madrid, Nov. 20.
There was reduced military activity around the capital today, largely owing to bad weather.

Spasmodic fighting occurred in the vicinity of the model prison, but this was mostly confined to rifle and machine-gun fire, with occasional artillery salvos.

There is no appreciable change in the military position, and there were no air raids to-day.—Reuter.

CUSTOMS OFFICIAL MURDERED
MACAO MAN SHOT TWICE IN BACK

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Macao, Nov. 20.

An unidentified gunman last night shot and killed an official of the Chinese Maritime Customs staff here, Mr. Che Koo-chun, firing two shots into his back before fleeing.

The Customs officer was proceeding along Travessa do Atento Novo Street, just off Avenida Almeida Ribeiro, Macao's main street, when a Chinese rushed at him and after firing two shots made his escape. The victim of the attack staggered two or three steps, and then fell dead.

The motive of the murderer is not known.

The Customs officer, who was aged thirty-one, was attached to the Lappa Customs Station in Macao, and he resided in the colony, with his wife and three children.

SUSPECT TAKEN

Macao, Nov. 21.

It is now reported that the alleged murderer of Mr. Che Koo-chun has been caught.

BABY RACE DECLARED LAWFUL
WON'T ENCOURAGE IMMORALITY
MILLAR WILL HELD LEGAL

Toronto, Nov. 20.

Mr. Justice Middleton ruled this afternoon that although the rich and unmarried Canadian lawyer, Charles Vance Millar, may have been eccentric, he certainly knew how to draw up a watertight last will and testament.

Efforts by Millar's relatives to nullify the "Baby Race" clause in Millar's will failed when Mr. Justice Middleton gave his decision this afternoon, dismissing the claim of Millar's relatives that the clause was invalid on the grounds that it offended public policy and tended to encourage immorality.

The Judge held, however, that only legitimate children were eligible in the Baby Marathon, whereby the most fecund Toronto mother between Halloween 1926 and Halloween, 1938, will receive $500,000 (Canadian currency). The decision eliminates Mrs. Pauline May Clark from the contest. She entered at the last moment with the announcement that she had borne 13 children in the ten years stipulated in Millar's will. Mrs. Clark admitted in court, however, that her husband was not the father of the five youngest children.

Mr. Justice Middleton announced that he would reserve judgment on the method to be adopted to determine the winning mother, or mothers.

His decision has eliminated thirteen of Millar's relatives who sought to break the will, since another clause stipulates that any person attempting to upset the will will automatically forfeit any rights they may have had.

With the elimination of Mrs. Clark, leaders

FASHION goes to your HEAD

YOU can take her to the water, but you can't make her drink! The designers have speedily found out that this maxim can be applied equally truly to the new spiral and sky high millinery.

Hats this year have borrowed their shapes from bygone periods. Regency and other tall styles are all very well with sweeping or billowy skirts to take the extra height.

But with the shorter skirts of modern days, cut and made on straight, tailored lines for practical utility, too-lofty a hat gives an out-of-proportion look to the rest of a woman's outfit.

Designers have been quick to recognise this, and have now readjusted styles to present-day needs.

A new hat gives you that "chin up" feeling even on a really depressing day, and there's an extra pleasant feeling when you know that the one you have bought follows faithfully the latest trend of fashion.

A Word About These Women Who "Obey"

MEN have very decided opinions about women. "No girl of mine shall do this," they say.

They speak so convincingly and sound so decided that far too many women are impressed by them, and as soon as you hear a girl say "I've given up smoking because John doesn't like it," you know that she is on the road to ruin.

In nearly every case, with very few exceptions, advice from men is the wrong advice, and is responsible for breaking up friendships, love affairs, and causing discord in the home circle.

Men lay down the law about extravagance till at last their wives listen. There are hosts of wives to day who have forgotten they once loved to wear hand-sewn lingerie and use fragrant perfume. They drift through the day smelling faintly of furniture polish and admiring the excellent hang of their curtains, a smooth unbroken line with which their dresses can't compete.

Are they contented? . . . No. Do their husbands like them any better? . . . Not us much!

Men would have you believe that they didn't like make-up—that flirtatious women annoyed them, and that they admired nice, quiet, peaceful girls with even tempers.

But what happens at a party when a red-headed girl with green fingernails breaks a gramophone record over somebody's head? . . . Every man in the room would like to have the next dance with her and probably the most dignified doctor or lawyer present will spend the rest of the evening taking her to tea about it.

"I can't see such an attractive girl behaving like that," he will say, and after a long and logical homily on the subject he will end up by asking her to dinner . . . at which point, if she is wise, she will reach for another record.

Why should a girl give up cigarettes or cocktails, or flirting, or sunbathing, or telling lies over the telephone?

It isn't as if she would gain anything by it.

The girl, if there is one, who does exactly what her men friends tell her, and is to be found obediently waiting at a restaurant five minutes too early, with no make-up, in a sunny temper, and obviously with no eyes for anybody else, as a type seems to be neither very prevalent nor popular.

No, it is the silken creature who rushes up late with a vague excuse that men will use, but women should listen and agree and continue to go their own way in the end. For, though men may think they mean what they say, they are born reformers and will rapidly lose all interest when there is nothing left for them to reform.

AFRAID TO GO TO BED

Woman's Dread of Rheumatic Pains

The effect of rheumatism upon this woman was a peculiar one. She so dreaded the numbness that used to overcome her at night that she was afraid to go to bed. She tells her experiences in the letter published below:

"I have been suffering from rheumatism for years. At one time I could scarcely walk with pains in my feet. The thumb of my left hand was so stiff I could only bend it with the aid of the right hand. I was afraid to go to bed as my right hand and arm up to the elbow had to go numb, and the pain was just terrible until I got the circulation going again. I started to take a half-teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast, and believe me I feel a different woman. I tell everyone what I take, and the good it has done me."—(Mrs.) W. A. B.

The pains of rheumatism are caused by deposits of needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. The most effective solvents of these crystal deposits are sodium and potassium. Kruschen Salts contain both sodium and potassium. They are the only salts which bring a double action to bear in dissolving the uric acid crystals.

THE neatest sort of gnocchi are made with semolina. Roll a four and a half ounce of it in a pint of milk, being careful to stir well or it will get lumpy, and cook it for about twenty minutes when it will begin to leave the sides of the pan. Then add salt to your taste, an ounce of butter and three-quarters of an ounce of grated Parmesan cheese. Let the mixture cool a little, then add two beaten eggs, mix well together and pour it on to a buttered dish, spreading it out to an even thickness of about three-quarters of an inch. Let it get quite cold, cut it into squares, and arrange these in a fireproof dish, putting between each layer an ounce of butter in little bits and some more grated cheese. Put butter only on the top, and when they are wanted, put the dish into a hot oven, so that the gnocchi are heated through and slightly browned.

SAVOYS, those nicest of all cabbages, are beginning to come in now. Sarah strongly approves of their slightly turnip flavour, and she thinks they are quite the best sort for making the following cabbage dishes.

See if you agree with her.

Cabbage Soup

ABOUT this time last year I gave a French recipe for Cabbage Soup. Here is another one which comes from Hungary, I am told.

Cut up a quarter of a pound of lean pickled pork into small cubes, and shred a two-pound cabbage in strips. Chop up finely two small onions and cut two tomatoes in quarters. Now fry, or rather stew all these together in two tablespoonfuls of lard, seasoning with salt, pepper and paprika pepper, and when they are half cooked add a quart of hot water. Simmer until all are tender, then bind if you like with flour and sour cream, or eat it with a spoonful of salt. Cook gently in a pan with a cupful of vinegar and a teaspoonful of salt. Cook until the cabbage is done, then remove the cover and let the top potatoes brown.

Scalloped Cabbage

PUT the Creamed Cabbage into a buttered fireproof dish, cover with breadcrumbs (and if you like grated cheese), dot with butter and bake in the oven until browned.

Creamed Cabbage

MIX chopped up boiled and well-drained cabbage with a good white sauce.

Hot Slaw

THIS curious dish demands raw cabbage bound with a hot sauce. Shred half a raw cabbage finely. In a saucepan large enough to take the cabbage, put two slightly beaten egg yolks, a quarter of a breakfastspoonful of cold water, a quarter of a cupful of vinegar, and a teaspoonful of salt. Cook these ingredients gently in a pan with a cupful of sugar, stir well, cook for another five minutes and serve.

Hot Red Cabbage

WE must not forget the red cabbage, generally used for pickling, but so much nicer when eaten hot, especially with pork or bacon.

Savoy Cabbage

Slice the cabbage very finely and soak it in cold water for half an hour. Then put it into the saucepan with an ounce of butter, a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a salt-spoonful of salt, some cayenne pepper and a touch of nutmeg, add a little liquid, whatever, and cook slowly with the lid on for about an hour. As soon as the cabbage is done, add a dessertspoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of vinegar, stir well, cook for another five minutes and serve.

"Black Harlem's" Disciples In Trouble

New York, Nov. 20.

Negro women who called themselves "Virgin Mary," "Satisfied with Love," "Gone from Sin" and 26 other followers of Father Divine, Harlem religious leader who says he is "God," tried to register for the presidential election under their heavenly names and were arrested for their efforts.

Their efforts included insistence that the names were their real names and that they were being denied their constitutional rights. Their insistence became so loud that 2,000 people jammed the street in front of the registration place at 40 West 115th St., near Father Divine's Peace Mission, and it took radio patrol squads 30 minutes to get the insistent followers to the police precinct headquarters.

NAMES UNACCEPTABLE

About two dozen of the faithful entered the registration place and began filling out blanks with their "heavenly" names. Victor Fernandez, chairman of the local registration board, refused to accept the registrations on the ground they were illegal. The followers began marching around the room chanting:

"Peace, isn't it wonderful, Father Divine is God. Hooray for the body (Father Divine). He is our Lord. They're violating our constitutional rights."

"Virgin Mary" seemed to be mother of the brood so Fernandez tried to reason with her and called in two patrollers from the nearby precinct to help in the persuasion. The followers were adamant.

More followers came from the nearby mission and hundreds more, hearing the chanting, poured into the streets.

DUNDLED INTO CARS

When the radio and emergency squad cars answered the two patrolmen's appeal for aid, the crowd increased and the chanting got louder. The policemen loaded "Virgin Mary" and the others who had attempted to register into cars and drove away to the precinct station.

The crowd followed and chanted in front of the station. Their enthusiasm grew until some burst right into the station. Seven more were arrested and hauled away with the other 22 to court, charged with disturbing the peace.

Father Divine went into court once before when his followers attempted to register under their heavenly names. The court decided they would have to use their original names.

Two white women and seven men were among the 29 arrested to-night. All either gave their ages as "21 plus" or "1," "2," or "3." The "1," "2" or "3" they explained represented when they were "born again" into Father Divine's kingdom.

Among the others arrested were "Simon Peter," "Mary Magdalene," "Wonderful Wisdom," "Trust, Love and Life," "Desired End," "Satisfied at Last," "Quiet Love," "Dawn Cornelius" and "David Kindness."—United Press.

Johannesburg, Nov. 15. One dour Scotsman, who hates Trade Unions, is threatening to stop a whole gold mine turning out a million sterling monthly.

The miners are now threatening to strike unless the man joins up.

Hitherto all persuasion by the Labour Department, Miners' Union, friends and workmates has been useless. The man declares he is remaining free, as he does not like the Unions. He has the laugh, as the miners do not want to strike, having nothing to gain thereby.

U.S. FLEET IN THE PACIFIC

Washington, Nov. 20. High Army and Navy officials are studying plans for separate manoeuvres to test land, sea and air defences of the Pacific Northwest and adjacent waters next summer.

The Army's mimic warfare will depend upon whether Congress appropriates about $250,000 to defray the expenses of a huge troop concentration of regular Army and National Guard units comprising the fourth Army.

If the appropriation is forthcoming, War Department officials will concentrate approximately 30,000 officers and men in the field to simulate a war-time defence of the Puget Sound area.

PROBLEM 18

During May and June the U.S. Fleet will conduct its annual manoeuvres, officially known as "Fleet Problem Eighteen," in the waters between Hawaii and the Pacific coast. This may be a defence of the Puget Sound area against an "Enemy" Fleet sweeping down from the Aleutian Islands and the Alaskan coast.

Two years ago the scouting force of cruisers and a large number of Naval airplanes reconnoitred the entire Alaskan and Aleutian Islands' coast. Last year Naval manoeuvres were held off the west coast of Central America, between the Panama Canal and Hawaii.

It also is the turn of the Pacific Northwest to play host to manoeuvres by one of the four Armies of the land defences. This year the second Army held large-scale manoeuvres in the middle western states. Two years ago the first Army manoeuvred in New York, Pennsylvania and New England. Camp Lewis, Washington, will probably be the "jumping off" point of the 197 manoeuvres, since that is one of the few camps in the area equipped to accommodate so large a body of men.

AWAY FROM HOME

Manoeuvres in the open country of the northwest area would afford opportunity for the Army to make use of its modern motorized and mechanized equipment. Its long reach from the home fields of the various wings of the general headquarters and its force would present real problems for the air force.

The mission of the air force in the manoeuvres has not been worked out in detail, but tactical officers think it likely that strong detachments of all wings will be thrown against some strategical base of the "attacking" force, with the object of destroying the "invaders'" base of supplies, communication or air force.

Detachments of the air force at Langley Field, Va., and Barksdale Field, La., will be concentrated at the Air Corp Fields in Southern California to be thrown against the "invaders" in a surprise attack to break their foothold in the Puget Sound area.—United Press.

FAMILY OF 172

There are 172 members of the McConchie family in Victoria, Australia, and they have just celebrated the fact by going all together to the South Richmond Methodist church for a service.

It was conducted by a Reverend McConchie. The choir of 30 and the orchestra of three were all McConchies, and McConchies took up from more than 100 other McConchies a collection which was unusually large.

Mr. and Mrs. David McConchie who came to Australia 64 years ago, from Langham, Scotland, were the founders of the family of which their eldest surviving son, aged 77, is now the "head man." The family has its own very successful cricket team.

CHURCH NOTICES

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hongkong

SOUL AND BODY

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science Churches will be tomorrow November 22, will be "Soul and Body."

The Golden Text will be, "The light of the body is the eye; if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light." (Matt. 6: 22.)

Amongst others, the following citations from the Bible will be read, "O Lord, thou hast preached the causes of my soul; thou hast redeemed my life. And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, "Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her, and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God. And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work; in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day. The Lord then unloosed him, and said, "Thou hypocrite dost not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to water it? And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day? And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed; and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him. (Lam. 3; 58. Luke. 13: 11-17.)

The Lesson Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

"Do you say the time has not yet come in which to recognize Soul as substantial and able to control the body? Remember Jesus, who nearly nineteen centuries ago demonstrated the power of Spirit and said, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also, and who also said, "But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth." If we rise no higher than blind faith, the Science of healing is not attained, and Soul-existence, in place of sense-existence, is not comprehended. We apprehend Life in divine Science only as we live above corporeal sense and correct it. Our proportionate admission of the claims of good or of evil, determines the harmony of our existence, our health, our longevity, and our Christianity.

Keep distinctly in thought that man is the off-spring of God, not of man; that man is spiritual, not material; that Soul is Spirit, outside of matter; never in it, never giving the body life and sensation. It breaks the dream of disease to understand that sickness is formed by the human mind, not by matter nor the divine Mind. Man is harmonious when governed by Soul. Hence the importance of understanding the truth of being, which reveals the laws of spiritual existence. God never ordained a material law to annul the spiritual law. If there were such a material law, it would oppose the supremacy of Spirit, God, and impugn the wisdom of the creator.

Really, intent that humans see the fact, that sickness is a temporary dream. Realize the presence of health and the fact of harmonious being, until the body corresponds with the normal conditions of health and harmony. (Pages 02, 107, 306, 273, 412.)

AUSTRO-GERMAN TRADE PACT ENVISAGED AS SEQUEL OF CONVERSATIONS

Berlin, Nov. 20.
The official visit of Dr. Gustav Schmidt, Austrian Foreign Minister, has concluded.

A communiqué issued to-day states that Dr. Schmidt had several friendly conferences with Baron von Neurath, Foreign Minister, of a political, economic and cultural character concerning both States.

The discussions resulted in an accord being reached on Germany's and Austria's respective views, and it was decided, in order considerably to increase the amount of reciprocal trade, that negotiations for a new trade agreement shall begin in Vienna on December 7.—Reuter.

ANIMALS' DAY

GENERAL BARTHOLOMEW'S APPEAL FOR S.P.C.A.

A flag-day collection is being made to-day on behalf of the funds of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Among the wholehearted supporters of the Society is His Excellency Major General A. W. Bartholomew, whose message on behalf of this cause was embodied in a radio appeal made at the local broadcasting station last night.

The G.O.C.'s message was as follows:

"I understand that a broadcast is to be made in order to help raise funds for your society, and I should like to take this opportunity of wishing you, and all workers of the Society, every success in your campaign."

As you well know, there is an enormous amount to be done in the Colony and it is only with the public's generous support that the Society can improve, by means of its inspectors, on the good that is already being done. You have my most wholehearted support in your work and I am sure, that all those who have any love for animal welfare will help to alleviate the terrible conditions which exist here by supporting the S.P.C.A. to the limit of their pockets.

I shall look forward most keenly to seeing the results of your appeal as a real and material improvement in the conditions of the animals both on the Island and in the New Territories."

The Chinese cruiser Hai Yung was towed into harbour this morning, apparently from Canton. She has gone into dry dock.

It is notified that during the absence from the Colony of Mr. Charles L. Hoover, Consul-General for the United States at Hongkong, Mr. Howard Donovan, Consul, will be in charge of the American Consulate-General.

40TH ANNIVERSARY SENIOR SHIELD TOURNAMENT

There will be a few drawn matches. Navy are quite likely to force a replay with South China "A", while Club, in view of the absence of Forrow and Drown may be perfectly content to earn a draw against the improving Kowloon Chinese. I think the others will win against Kowloon and South China "B". Club will probably emerge victorious against the Athletics. Cut Police and East Lancasters is a team in which anything may happen, especially as the Police are said to be turning out a "mystery" team for the occasion.

When I phoned yesterday for the team I discovered a "hush-hush" party prevailing at Police headquarters. "Decided not to announce the composition of the team" was the reply to my enquiry. But I have heard it whispered the Police are turning out a brand new contingent, and that there may be other unexpected changes.

LAST NIGHT'S BADMINTON

should settle down into a 'good team' later on.

All of the Free Lancs played well, and I rather think they will offer the most serious challenge to Recreio "A's" supremacy. It is a real pity they have no court of their own, as they would become a most formidable opposition on a court which they thoroughly understand.

The details of last evening's matches follow.

"DON'T DIET," SAYS DR. HAY*"Eat Sensibly, But*Live on Fat of the Land"*IN EDINBURGH'S CLIMATE

Dr. William Howard Hay, the world-renowned diet expert, has a great deal of sympathy with Edinburgh's famous bad colds. He admits he shivered a great deal when he arrived in Edinburgh to lecture on his diet system.

Lack of available words other than "diet expert" and "diet system" compelled their use; actually they are quite wrong. Dr. Howard Hay is not an advocate of fancy diets and things. He is the very reverse. He urges sensible eating and preaches the methods. He might be called a food expert, if that did not sound rather like a grocer assuming airs.

Speaking generally, Dr. Hay says that most foods are good if taken in the proper combinations.

"I wish I could get away from this word 'diet,'" he remarked in a conversation with a London reporter in the North British Station Hotel. "I want people to live on the fat of the land, but not to mix the fat of the land wrongly or eat too much at one time. That's all."

This is the first time Dr. Hay has crossed the Atlantic, although his mother came from Glasgow and his father was Irish. He has a specially warm side for Scotland; but though his heart may have been warm towards Scotland, the rest of him was not. He admits he shivered for the first time for many years. And like every other visitor from across the Atlantic or the North Sea, he had nothing complimentary to say about our heating systems.

ABOUT PORRIDGE

Dr. Hay smiled when told that if he could hand out a cure for Edinburgh's famous colds, blamed upon sudden changes in temperature (such as have occurred within the past few days), he might earn a statue for himself in Princes Street Gardens.

"Colds," he said, "don't affect people whose physical condition is correct. Thousands of people simply cannot get a cold. I can't get a cold, no matter how much infection I encounter. Sudden changes in climate have no effect upon a person who is properly nourished."

"Do you mean to say that Edinburgh people get colds quite unnecessarily?"

"Not only Edinburgh people. All people. A cold affects a person whose body contains the ashes of acid foods eaten in unbalanced quantities. That's all. Breads, fish, eggs, cheese—all the things people usually eat—are responsible. They should take one-third of what they normally take of these foods, and balance their meals with other foods. Then they would enjoy changes of climate instead of dreading them."

Dr. Howard Hay is a bold man; he even dares to come to Scotland for the first time and criticise porridge.

"If the cereal were taken in the form of scones, bannocks, and buns, then certainly, but as porridge, no. Oatmeal is predominantly starchy, and has to be mixed with saliva for the starch to be split up. It should not remain saturated with water."

HERRINGS AND MEAL

Dr. Howard Hay was reminded that the "lad o' pairts" of yesterday came from the outlying parts to Edinburgh to study at the University, with a sack of meal and a barrel of salt herring to keep him for a term, and these "lads o' pairts" did well for themselves all over the world.

Dr. Hay said he was well aware of this diet of meal and herring. They must, on the average, have been young men of very hardy types, and they would, while in Edinburgh, be susceptible to all the prevalent ailments. Such food would leave them with more and more toxic every year, and they would soon begin to loose their teeth.

CURING THAT COLD

Dr. Hay's cure for a cold would simply be purifying the body, then flooding with fruit juices such as orange and lemon, and a hot bath for sweating. He had cured opera-singers of colds before the next day's performance.

"What do doctors do for disease?" asked this revolutionary gentleman as he smoked his morning cigarette thoughtfully. "Nothing at all. The disease is there. They can't cure it. They can only encourage the body to fight it. There would be no disease if there were no debris in the body."

Vaccination was in his opinion a temporary measure. It could be likened to fighting a forest fire by lighting a small fire with the wind blowing towards the greater fire. The forest fire could not reach you because it burned out when it reached the smaller fire. Yet that did not render you immune from forest fires.

Dr. Hay was at one time an eminent surgeon in Pennsylvania. At the age of 41 his health broke down completely. He suffered from Bright's disease and blood pressure. No one could cure him, so he set about studying his own habits. He found he was, like most people, eating his own head off.

So he succeeded in adjusting his menus, and in three months was able to take out a life insurance policy and resume his practice as a surgeon.

70, BUT LOOKS 50

But his experience of the value of proper nutrition made it impossible to recommend surgical operations upon people who would obviously get better if their diets were corrected. No matter where the abscess in the body was situated, or whether or not it was an inflamed appendix, he saw no need to operate. In every case the disease yielded when the body was properly nourished.

"I simply ruined my own surgical practice," said Dr. Hay, "and confined myself to the nutritional side of healing."

In Pennsylvania Dr. Hay now has a large sanatorium at Mount Pocono for the training of domestic assistants, of nurses, and of physicians. His books have an enormous circulation, and his system is followed widely throughout America.

Recently, he says, the foremost surgeon in America stated that nine-tenths of the surgical operations carried out to-day were unnecessary.

"I cannot applaud that remark," said Dr. Hay, "for ninety-nine hundredths would be much nearer the mark."

An extraordinary man, indeed, this Dr. Howard Hay who has dared to invade Edinburgh, which has given such a great contribution to healing, especially in the realms of surgery.

To-day's lectures and afterwards will see if he succeeds in metaphorically infecting the city with "Hay fever."

A HAY DIET MENU

At a luncheon to Dr. Hay in the North British Station Hotel the menu was drawn up according to the Hay diet rules. It was as follows:

First course—Clear brown meat soup;

Second course—Two small cutlets with creamed cauliflower and cabbage on the same plate. Served at the same time, but eaten separately, was a salad consisting of tomatoes, cucumber, cress, and lettuce, with olive oil and lemon dressing; the usual bottled sauces were also available if required. No potatoes allowed with this course.

Third course—Jelly with pieces of apple, bananas, and cherries inset.

Fourth course—Coffee with milk and brown sugar.

On a separate plate, but eaten at any time during the luncheon were salted almonds, radish, olives, and sticks of celery.

Spirits, wines, and beer were permissible.

Maidstone, Kent, Nov. 15. CLARENCE Hatry, the ex-financier who is serving a 14 years' sentence in Maidstone gaol following his sensational trial in 1930, has a new job.

He is chief gardener at the jail—a job he owes to his life-long love of gardening.

A close friend of Hatry, who recently visited him in Maidstone Gaol, said to-day:

"Hatrty is a much fitter and happier man since the prison authorities gave him this task."

"He is given full scope for his artistic abilities to be demonstrated in lay-out of the gardens and supervision of planting."

"He has, I believe, brought many new plants and flowers from his home garden to the prison garden."

Parachute jumping is not for the aged. Sulakhi Gladze, who claims to be 126 years old, has discovered this after leaping from a parachute tower.

Women Want Spicy Films

"UPLIFT" NOT IN DEMAND

By A Special Correspondent

WHAT do women like best to see at "the pictures"? "A cinema manager told me the other day: 'If we don't put something spicy in our programmes our women patrons will stay away.' And I was horribly conscious that this was perfectly true."

Speaking recently to a meeting of the Mothers' Union at Mary Summer House, Westminster, the Hon. Eleanor Plumer, who has made a special study of the cinema and its problems, said:

The King To Sell Part Of Sandringham

By A Correspondent

Sandringham, Nov. 10.
THE KING, I learn, has decided to sell a part of his Sandringham estate.

He reached this decision after his four-days' visit here last week, when he had several long talks with his tenant farmers.

One of the King's tenants has been anxious for some years to buy his farmland so that he may develop it in a different way.

The erection of a factory to produce cattle-food, which would create more employment here, is a possible result of the King's decision.

The King also ordered the scrapping of the out-of-date private power-house and gas plant which have supplied Sandringham House for many years. In future, the house will be connected up to the grid system.

YORK COTTAGE

There are rumours here that a new tenant is to occupy York Cottage, the dower-house, in the grounds of Sandringham, where King George and Queen Mary used to live when Queen Alexandra was alive.

This is untrue. Mr. Fellowes, the King's new estate agent, has for Pointing out that "the young generation is growing up cinemaminded and film-conscious," she declared she was astonished at its capacity for enjoying two "feature" films in one programme. She thought that the ideal programme for everybody would consist of one "feature" film, a "documentary short"—descriptive, like "Night Mail," of some vital part of the nation's life—a news reel, and perhaps a cartoon.

ESCAPE FROM REAL LIFE

Mrs. Plumer urged that it was high time something definite was done to elevate the general taste in films. "But," she said, "we must not forget that people go to the cinema to be entertained—they don't go for 'uplift' or to be educated, though they often like it when something educational is introduced in an attractive way."

Referring to "the elaborate and costly productions" which are sensational in theme and execution, Miss Plumer said:

"People flock to see these films because of the desire to escape from real life. The luxurious bedrooms, the marvellous hotels, the spacious town and country houses in which the smallest room seems like a palace to us—these give people an opportunity vicariously to enjoy something they never know in ordinary life."

The vast majority of people that were captured by novelty and all that was most sensational in films,

Britain Wants Fawzi Koukji Dead or Alive

(From A Special Correspondent)

Night and day, an increasing search is being made in isolated villages of Palestine for one man, Fawzi Koukji, whose capture would bring about the collapse of the whole Arab rebellion.

Yesterday five battalions of infantry, cavalry and tanks surrounded Qunabatye, on the Nablus-Jenin road.

But despite the most careful preparations, and the use of thousands of troops Fawzi Bey, aided by his fanatical Arab supporters, eluded searchers again.

The hunt has now begun afresh—in a district 50 miles from Qunabatye. And now I learn that the Arab town of Belisan, in the Jordan valley, has organised a 24 hours' strike, said to be due to troop movement against Fawzi.

This week I have obtained new facts about the mystery man, Fawzi Bey. He is tall, fair and handsome, and is expert in all forms of strategem, diplomatic and military.

As a young man he joined the military college in Turkey and learned invaluable lessons on military tactics, particularly those relating to desert warfare.

Added to this he spent a period as a cadet on a Turkish warship, and then became a pilot in the Turkish air force.

He was captured by British forces in 1918, and was held in prison for three years.

On his release he returned to his native village of Qunabatye.

He was soon accepted as a leader of the Arab revolt.

He has since become the chief organiser of the Arab rebellion.

He is now regarded as the most dangerous man in Palestine.

His arrest would leave the Arab rebels leaderless and bring about the end of all trouble.

But though Fawzi Bey is elusive his capture is inevitable.

Every soldier and constable in Palestine has seen Fawzi Bey's photograph and has memorised his description.

Alive or dead, Fawzi Bey must and will be captured.

GERMANY AND JAPAN

The one justifiable conclusion to be drawn from the agreement reached between Germany and Japan is that it is definitely directed against Russia. Both Governments may wish it to be interpreted as nothing more than a defensive alliance and part of a larger scheme aimed at consolidation of the anti-Communist bloc, but it is reasonable to assume that the understanding has military as well as political implications. Germany and Japan have in common a hatred of Russia and a desire for external expansion—factors which may make the present agreement expedient, but which may not suffice to keep them linked together indefinitely. How far either Germany's or Japan's fear of Communistic infiltration is soundly based is open to question. To the outside observer, the thought suggests itself that the autocratic powers of the Governments of both countries would suffice to prevent Red doctrines spreading internally to a point involving real danger to the State. It is to be conceded that Russia has a penchant for worldwide propaganda and that it is quite natural that nations wishing to be saved from the spread of subversive ideas should be on the alert against possible infection by Red doctrines. But we have to go further below the surface to find the real reason for the Germano-Japanese accord. There is no evidence at the moment that Russia is bent on aggression, but there is, as the Times does well to point out, something more than mere self-defence in the Japanese-inspired activities along the Mongolian border. In other words, there is present in this new understanding the danger of producing conditions which may well lead to a clash of arms. That is its worst aspect. In this connection, sight must not be lost of the possibility that an outbreak of war in the East might not end there. The new development comes at a time when suspicion and distrust are almost universal, and, in these circumstances, the alignment of two military-minded nations cannot but tend to increase existing tension. Happily, there seems no prospect of Britain becoming involved in the new situation created, since British policy is not based on the conclusion of special alliances.

"MY wife died as the result of calumny against me, which has also eaten my mother's heart."

"I have fought hard but I am beaten. They did not succeed in dishonouring me but they bear the responsibility for my death. Neither a deserter nor a traitor, my party has been my life and joy."

Thus Roger Salengro, French Minister of Interior

who took his own life at Lille on Wednesday.

There was onefeat in the career of Roger Salengro, aged 46, that few men, if any, have ever equalled.

Captured in 1915 by the Germans he was ordered to work in a munitions factory. Not only did he refuse to work but to the anger and amusement of his captors Salengro organized a strike among the workers. After appearing before three German courts martial he was sentenced to two years' hard labour.

That dramatic episode is a key to Salengro's character. Hard-boiled, tenacious, determined to pursue his course to its logical end, Salengro was Blum's natural choice for the Ministry of Interior which is considered the most powerful Cabinet post in France.

After completing his university training at the Sorbonne, the future Cabinet minister returned to his native city of Lille, France's northern industrial capital and joined the Socialist movement.

Like most pre-war agitators, Salengro was continually brought before the courts on charges of subversive articles and speeches. He was made Secretary of the Northern Socialist Federation immediately after the war. His remarkable abilities as an organiser brought him to the attention of the party chiefs and his rise thereafter was rapid. In 1925 he was elected Mayor of Lille.

The advantage of a four-car radio is that it does draw, the back seat driver.

These Names Make News

My Wife Died of Calumny . . . Eaten My Mother's Heart

The rebuilding of his native city is a standing monument to Salengro's ability. He endowed Lille with new hospitals, schools and other public works including a splendid city hall. He was elected to the Chamber of Deputies in 1928.

On taking office in the Blum Cabinet his first great task was to settle the strike that had paralysed the nation. Intervening on behalf of the workers, Salengro put pressure on the employers to grant the strikers their demands, thereby putting an end to a dangerous situation in record time.

World Watches

Admiral

RECENTLY reaching world

prominence by the part he played in the now famous Kezlung Incident, Vice Admiral Sir Charles Little is a man of many parts and destined to go even higher in the Empire's senior Service than the exalted post he at present holds.

Tall, keen-eyed and vigorous, the very popular Commander-in-Chief of the China Station is at 54 one of the most hardworking and travelled officials on the Coast. On this same Coast he has established a precedent by being the only Shanghai-born Admiral to command the British Fleet in China Waters.

Rising early every morning he is engaged in his duties from 8 o'clock most mornings but still finds time for tennis which is his favourite recreation.

Vice Admiral Little is the son of Dr. E. S. Little who was a member of a family famous among old China hands. His brother R. W. Little was at one time Editor of the North China Daily News and another brother was Archibald Little, pioneer of the Yangtze Gorges up to Chinkiang.

Educated at George Lanning's School in his early years, Charles James Colbeck Little joined the Royal Navy and marked the first stage of his rise to importance by obtaining, as a Sub-Lieutenant, the coveted "Five Firsts" in his promotion examination.

He specialised in submarines and was in that branch of the service during the war. During 1916-1918 he commanded H.M.S. Fearless and the Grand Fleet Submarine Flotilla.

Promotion to captain came in 1917, and two years later he went to the Baltic in command of the cruiser Cleopatra.

Actually, the Commodore will continue to act as such until his relief arrives here sometime in March next year.

While he was for two years in command of H.M.S. Berwick, Sedgwick made a host of friends in Hongkong and in the Royal Navy, the elevation of Commodore C. G. Sedgwick to Rear-Admiral in July this year came as a fitting recognition of his good record because in the same month his retirement from the service was announced.

When war broke out, the Commodore will continue to act as such until his relief arrives here sometime in March next year.

He slowed away on an American ship that took him to Honolulu and there he concealed himself in the sugar fields under an alias. Later came the news that America was entering the war on the side of the Allies and Shreiber, who had had no chance so far of pursuing his path homewards, decided he could lie doggo no longer. He took a chance by stowing away on an American ship, got off at San Francisco, hiked across the continent and boarded a Danish vessel which was going to Europe.

He ingratiated himself with the crew but unfortunately the ship had twice to call at London before she went to her home port. Eventually, she did get to Denmark and from there Shreiber found it comparatively easy to make his way across country to Germany where he joined up with the Navy.

Growing old now and wearing the spurs of an Old China Hand, this intrepid German has a round of friends here, not many of whom know the story of those rare escapes by Germans from the Far East to their native land.

Saw the sinking of a Fleet; to-day he enjoys golf and a full measure of popularity.

Since taking over the shore post he had held here for 18 months he has managed also to enjoy his favourite game of golf with them while controlling the important Naval Establishment of this Colony.

He joined the battleship London as midshipman in June, 1902. He specialized in gunnery in 1910 and on completing his course was retained for the staff of Devonport gunnery school. In 1912-14 he was gunnery officer of the cruiser Liverpool. During the War he served afloat in the battleship Magnificent, the light cruiser Royalist, and the cruiser Courageous, in which for a short time he was on the staff of the late Vice-Admiral Sir Trevet Napier.

He was afterwards in the Revenge, in 1919-21 as gunnery officer on the staff of Vice-Admiral Sir Sydney Fremantle, and in 1923-25 as executive officer, the two periods being interspersed with service in the Ordnance Department at the Admiralty. As a captain since December, 1925, he has been Deputy Director of the Gunnery Division and has commanded the 3rd Destroyer Flotilla and the Devonport Gunnery School.

After two years in command of the Berwick on the China Station, Admiral Sedgwick was relieved by Capt. E.C.O. Thompson whom he had succeeded in 1928 in the command of the 3rd Flotilla in the Mediterranean.

Serving in H.M.S. Revenge at the time of the Armistice, he witnessed the sinking of the German Fleet at Scapa Flow.

In 1909 he married the daughter of Capt. L. S. Dawson, R.N. There is one son who is also in the Royal Navy.

A Captain Who Stowed Away

STILL trading along the China Coast as he did more than a score of years ago is Capt. S. Shreiber, German master of a local coaster.

The only difference is that Capt. Shreiber was not a Captain in those days and, during one exciting period, he never thought he would continue his career in the Far East.

When war broke out, Shreiber was in Manila. All Germans out here were being rounded up but Shreiber decided that as a member of the German Naval Reserve he had a job to work to do at home.

He slowed away on an American ship that took him to Honolulu and there he concealed himself in the sugar fields under an alias. Later came the news that America was entering the war on the side of the Allies and Shreiber, who had had no chance so far of pursuing his path homewards, decided he could lie doggo no longer. He took a chance by stowing away on an American ship, got off at San Francisco, hiked across the continent and boarded a Danish vessel which was going to Europe.

He ingratiated himself with the crew but unfortunately the ship had twice to call at London before she went to her home port. Eventually, she did get to Denmark and from there Shreiber found it comparatively easy to make his way across country to Germany where he joined up with the Navy.

Growing old now and wearing the spurs of an Old China Hand, this intrepid German has a round of friends here, not many of whom know the story of those rare escapes by Germans from the Far East to their native land.

Answers to Week-End Problems

PROBLEM I HOHO'S LEGACY

Hobo must be an architect. A bank manager would calculate the interest on the capital correctly; and would have heard of "Bago" (an Argentine railway); the same holds good of the railway engineer and the stock-broker. Y.M.C.A. PANTOMIMERS MEET WITH CASTING DIFFICULTIES

CASTING difficulties are not helping Y.M.C.A.'s rehearsals of "Jack and the Beanstalk."

Following withdrawal of Audrey Steele from Principal Boy role, W. Simpson has been forbidden by medical advisers to take part in any active theatricals. Simpson was cast as the "Dame."

Noreen Cooper has been moved up to Principal Boy, Catherine Winch, who is also in Philharmonic's ballet, is taking Principal Girl. Y is still searching for someone to replace Simpson.

Cast at present lined up is as follows:

Jack	Noreen Cooper
Marguerite	Catherine Winch
Sir Shun Shulpo	J. J. Ferguson
Dizzy	W. Henderson
Dopey	Frank Angus
Ariel	Whinfred Lawson
Z.B.W.	J. R. Luke
Cooklo	W. Forsyth
Farmer Giles	W. Fruen
Bromo	R. Bates
Seltzer	W. J. Brown

Front and Hind legs of "Jenny, the bumptious cow" still open to any amateurs who want stage experience.

NO rest for Philharmonians, who are rehearsing three weekly for forthcoming production of "Maid of the Mountains." Rev. Cyril Brown, fresh from a vacation in Japan, is sparing no effort to make presentation an outstanding one, and cast has settled down to really hard work for the three weeks that intervene before stage will be set (December 10) for public performances.

Many people are sneaking into Queen's Theatre on Sunday mornings just to hear Ann Winter's marvellous voice at rehearsals. This talented ex-Plymouth player, who lifted "Country Girl" from failure to success last year, is definitely mainstay of "Maid of the Mountains". This is not meant as reflection on other members of cast, for "First Night" considers that Philharmonic's 1930-31 line-up is by far the best they have had in many years.

"Maid of the Mountains" will make a special appeal to non-Chinese as well as Chinese audiences. Idea of staging plays with requirements of our entire cosmopolitan population a primary consideration is, as far as I know, a new one for Hongkong amateur players.

Bouquet to Philharmonic Committee-man who thought out brilliant idea of getting those special posters from England. They are tasteful, dignified and appealing, and help put Philharmonic advertising on plane it deserves.

FOLLOWING highly successful "Night Must Fall", Hongkong's A.D.C. is rummaging around for another play, hopes to produce again before end of season. Rumour has it that A.D.C. will produce two further plays before June.

Bondmen and Freemen

John Ball's Address to the Rebels, 1381

JOHN BALL, English priest, was leader of the peasant revolt of 1381. His incitements to violence must be viewed in relation to harsh conditions of his period. At Blackheath he preached to the rebels from the text,

When Adam delved and Eve span,

Who was then the gentleman?

The rebellion failed, he was captured and executed at Coventry in the presence of Richard II, July 15, 1381.

FROM the beginning all men by nature were created alike, and our bondage or servitude came in by the unjust oppression of naughty men. For if God would have any bondmen from the beginning, he would have appointed who should be bond, and who free.

And therefore I exhort you to consider that now the time is come appointed to us by God, in which ye may (if ye will) cast off the yoke of bondage, and recover liberty. I counsel ye therefore well to bethink yourselves, and to take good hearts unto you, that after the manner of good husband that tilleth his ground and riddeth thereof such evil weeds as choke and destroy the good corn, you may destroy first the great lords of the realm, and after the judges and lawyers, and quest-mongers, and all other who have undertaken to be against the commons.

For so shall you procure peace and surely to yourselves in time to come; and by dispatching out of the way the great men, there shall be an equality in liberty, and no difference in degrees of nobility; but a like dignity and equal authority in all things brought in among you.

Girls' and Boys' Corner

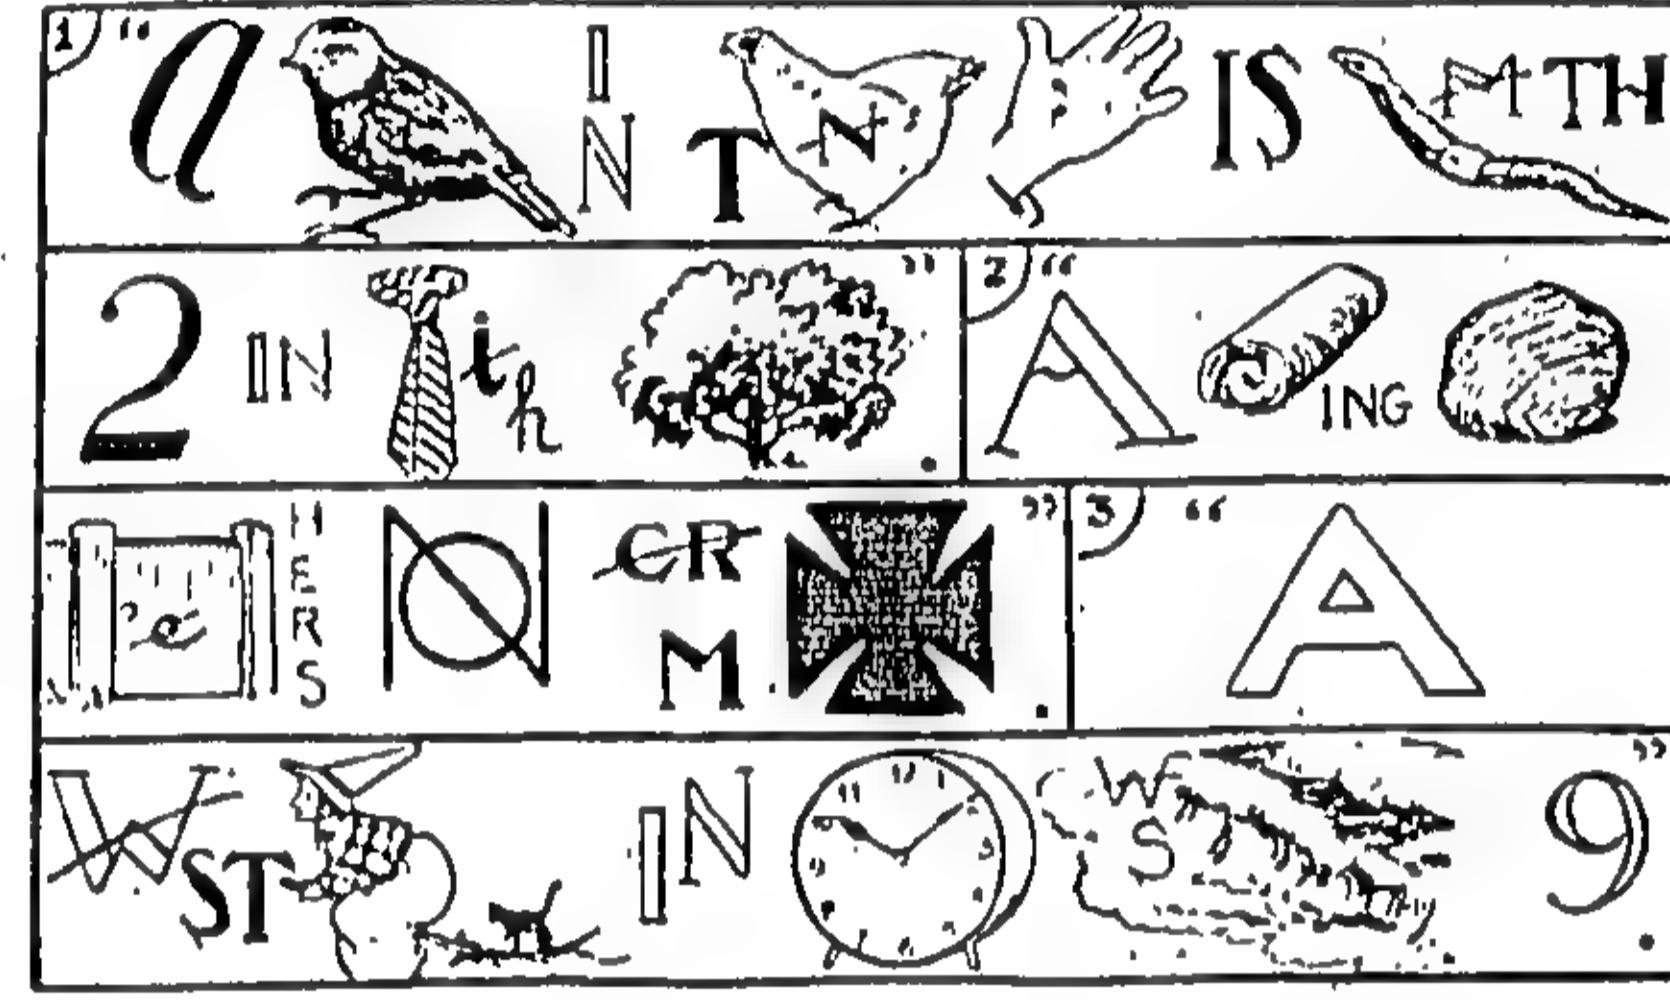

Dear Kiddies,
The "Punch and Judy" Competition last week was very popular, and I must congratulate you all on doing so well. The words were easy, weren't they? So, really, the result of the contest largely depended on good colouring. It has not been easy to award the prizes, but, after taking into account, I have come to the conclusion that the best Senior effort was sent in by Ho Shuk-chun (aged 12), 111 Robinson Road.

The best Junior entry was that of Geraldina Ribeiro, (aged 7), 2 Rue Formosa, Macao.

Will the winners call at the "Telegraph" office for their prizes?

Commended for good work are the following Seniors—Teddy Cropley, Maggie Alves, Yolanda Remedios, Audrey Ablong, Arthur Dand, Marge Xavier, Elsa Laurel, Fernando Alves, Gloria Ng Quina and Milna da Rosa, and Mollee Terry, Jeremy Bray, Evelyn Law and Kenneth Prince among the Juniors.

Now, children, I'm giving you a fairly easy competition this week

What you have to do is to discover the three well-known proverbs illustrated in the picture. When you have found them, write them out neatly on a postcard or piece of paper, numbering the list. Don't forget to give your age, as well as your full name and address.

I expect that most of you will solve the puzzle, neatness will be a big factor in the winning of the prizes. So see how good a job you can make, children.

There will be two prizes—one for children from 10 to 14, and the other for those under 10. Send in your entries to Uncle Eddie, c/o "Hongkong Telegraph," so as to reach him not later than 4 p.m., on Wednesday. Uncle Eddie.

PROBLEM I.

HOBOS LEGACY

"Hobo, you're in luck," said his visitor. "Your uncle at Surbiton has died, and you are his sole heir. He has left £2,000,000 in all; a lot of it's in 'Bags.' What do you know about that?"

"Sounds O.K. to me," said Hobo. "£2,000,000 at, say, 4 per cent. should bring me in how much—four into twenty is five—fifty thousand a year. Not too dusty. Where are the bags, by the way, have you got 'em with you?"

Hobo is an ornament of one of the following professions—which do you suppose it is?

Architect, Bank Manager, Railway Engineer, Solicitor, Stock-broker, Tax Inspector.

All's well with the Breast-fed Baby

The most valuable service a mother can render her baby is to ensure that he will be fed from the breast. Upon this may well depend his future health and happiness.

Maternal milk is the one perfect food for baby. It is naturally constituted to suit his delicate digestion and to provide every nutritive element required to ensure healthy growth and development.

Doctors and Nurses know the remarkable value of 'Ovaltine' to expectant and nursing mothers. Taken regularly before and after baby comes, 'Ovaltine' not only promotes a rich and ample supply of breast-milk but maintains the mother's strength and vitality.

ALL CORRECT

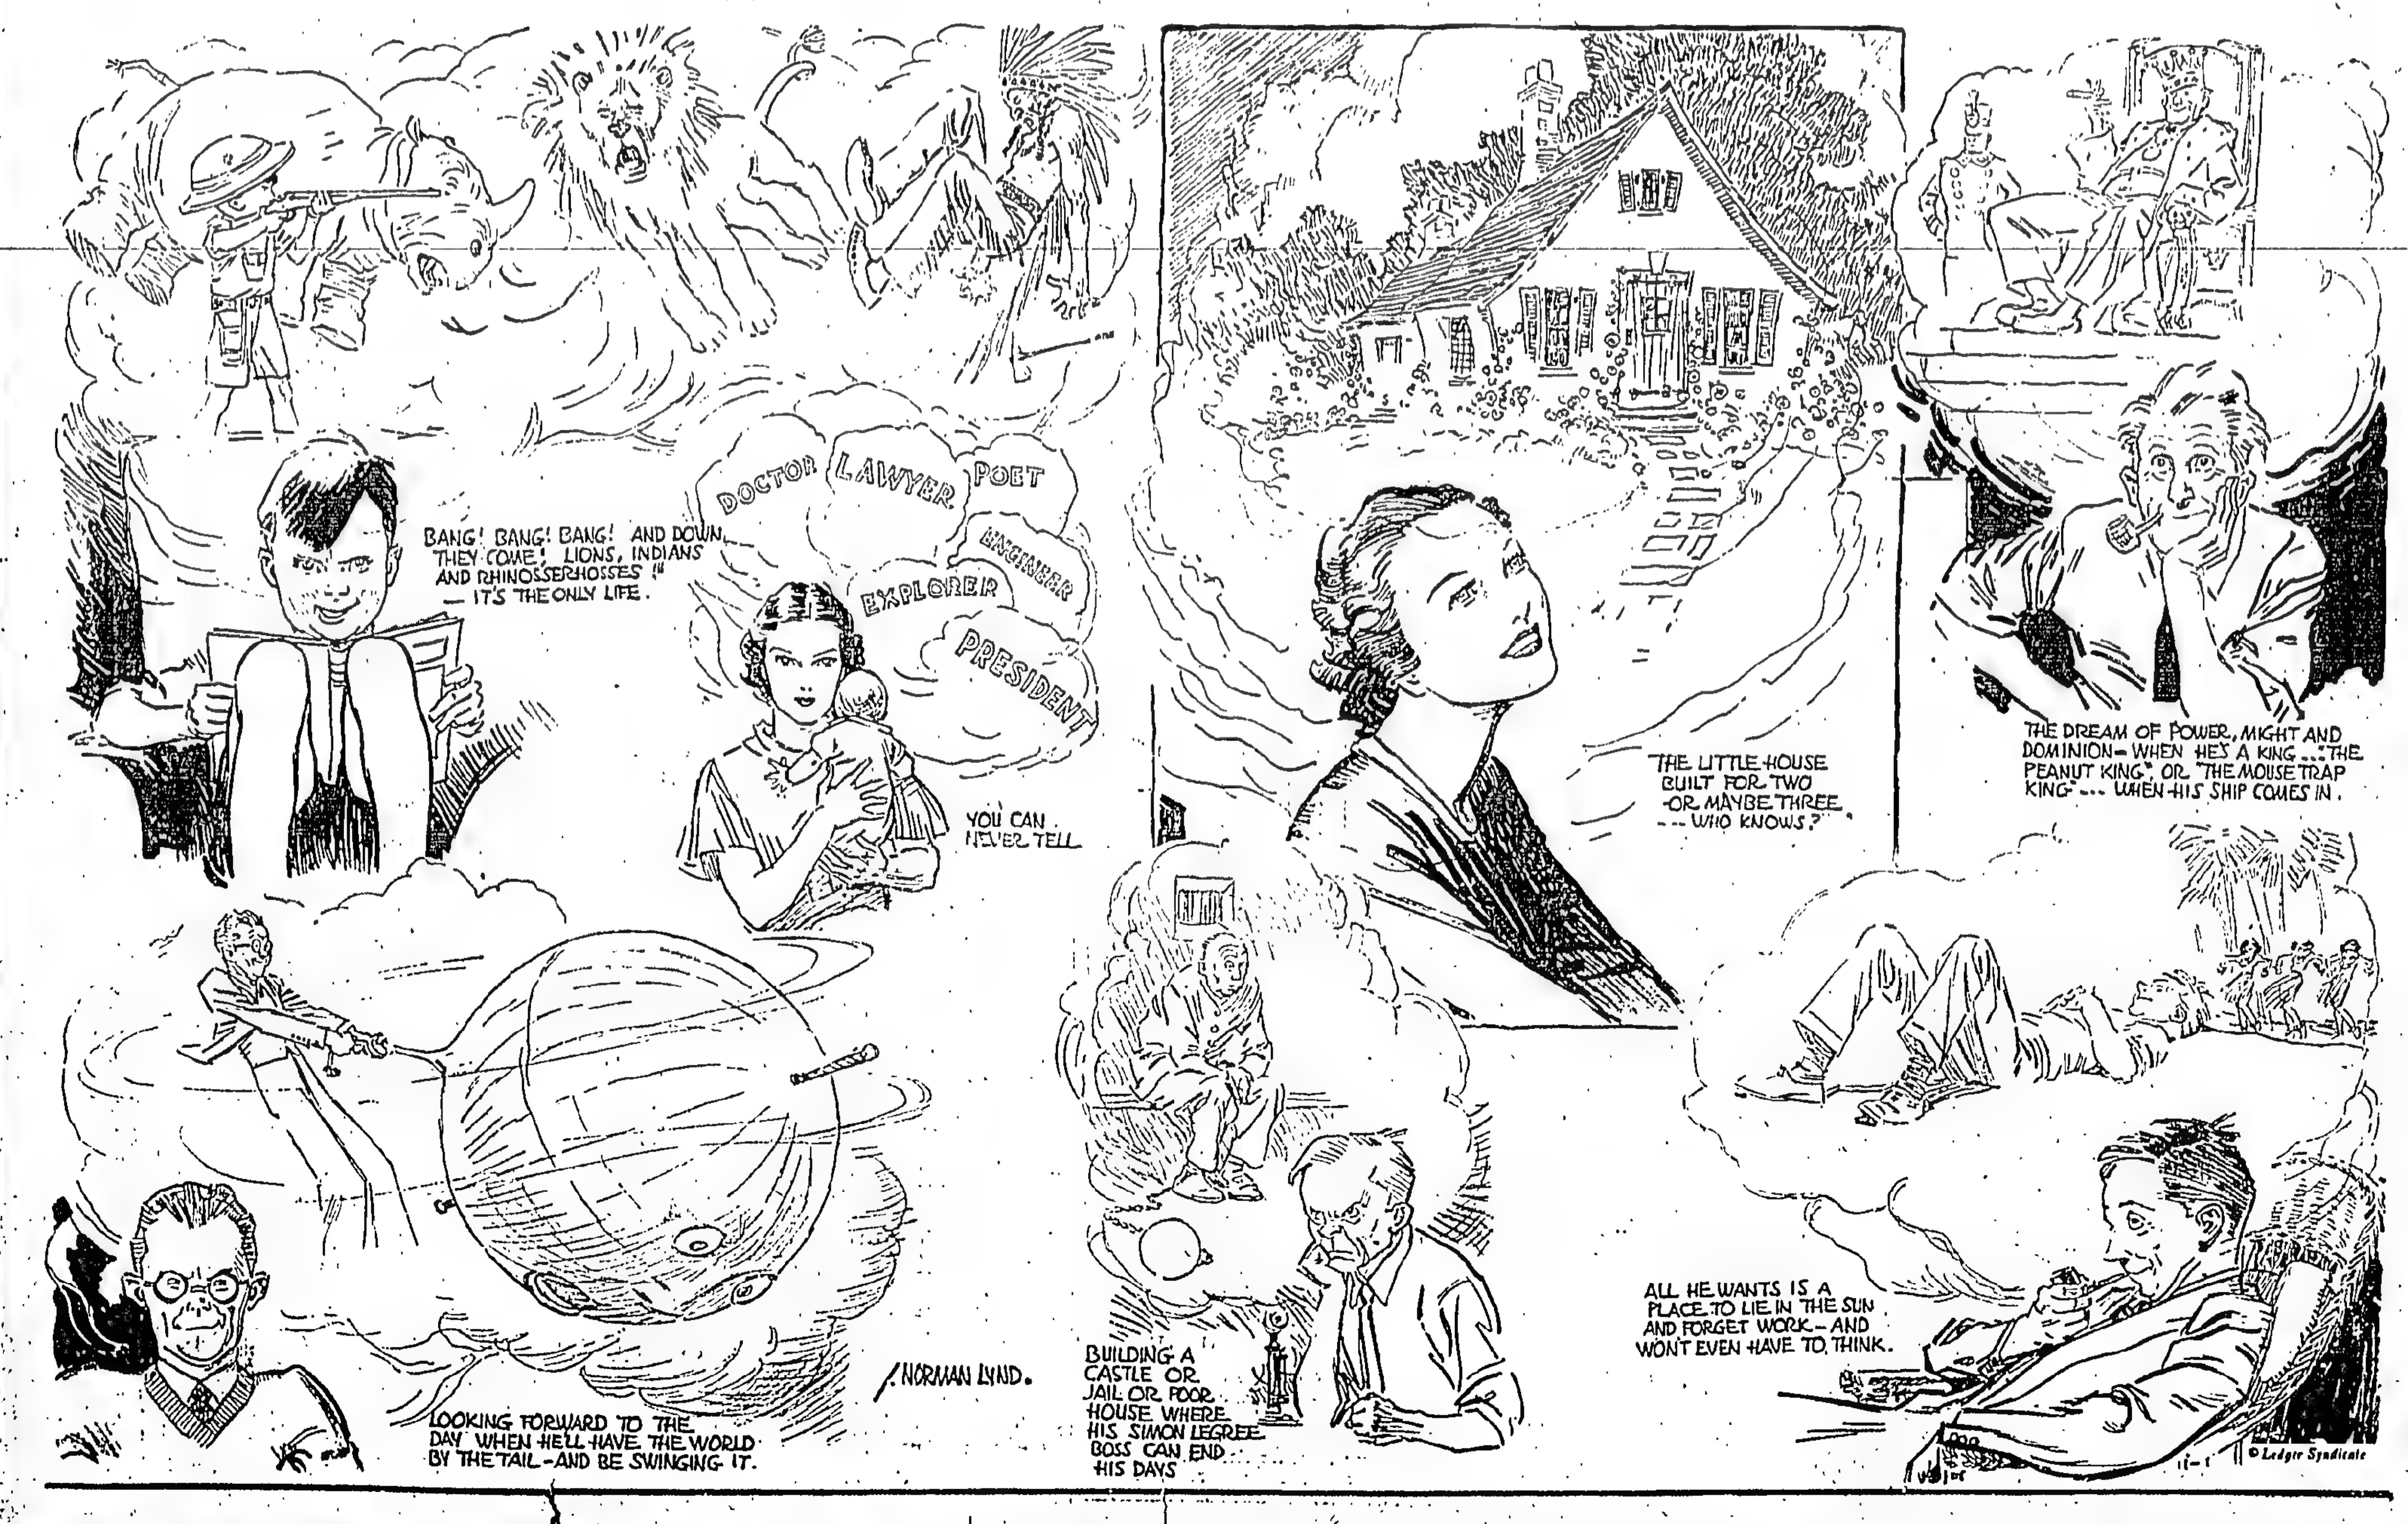

Evening Dress must be up-to-the-minute in correctness of detail and at the same time completely comfortable. That is why our white waistcoats are made in a choice of three depths of front in each fitting— evening shirts with two lengths of sleeve—six styles of dress collars in quarter sizes—and dress tie in styles to fit any size of collar.

Such refinement of detail makes certain that Mackintosh's dress clothes are comfortable and correct.

VIGNETTES OF LIFE
By J. NORMAN LYND

NOISE IS NOT THE ONLY "RACKET" FOUND IN HONGKONG MAH JONGG DENS

AN EVIL THAT IS GROWING

All Night Sessions

In Yaumati

(Special To "Telegraph").

If after a day of business uncertainty, of a depression that reaches to the mind and body, it be your wish to be recreated and entertained, let me be your guide and companion. The point is, what shall it be? The hour is after 10 p.m. Too late for the pictures, but there are other and stranger spectacles to be seen, if only we look for them. You will be entertained. Come!

It is now past 11 p.m. Yaumati, a busy hive of industry by day, continues its uproar far into the night. We are in the public square, now completely deserted except for the usual suspicious-looking characters loitering about. Here is the old Kowloon Magistracy building. There is the Tin Hau Temple with its ancient banyan tree. Farther on is the opening into Temple Street. Strikingly contrast, there is light and activity there; also much of the upturn we have so often noticed. But the uproar is now not that of a busy knitting factory. A continuous "rat-a-tat" sound as of a million woodpeckers at work.

The reason is soon discovered.

Over 400 men and women are playing mah jongg!

No social gathering could have collected together into such a small area so many people with only one intent or purpose: giving free rein to a passion in the indulgence of which time, place, and private circumstances are of little account, much less the public exhibition of it. Here introductions as an ordinary requirement of decent society are wholly dispensed with; and, to be in the thick of it, it is sufficient only to know the game and possess the means it entails.

MILLING MASS

Consider the spectacle, so unique I doubt you will find its equal anywhere. Four shops adjoining or facing each other across the narrow street, from ground floors, communicating through cocklofts to upper floors, these are packed with a milling mass—a mass that swells but does not toll; a mass with no time or attention to spare for anybody or anything beyond the interminable occupation of the game.

Let us now venture into the field of mathematics, for an assessment of numbers the better to give us an idea of this hectic atmosphere into which we have stepped. There are four players to each table. Twelve tables to each floor. Two floors and a cockloft to each "school." Four schools within hailing distance of each other. One must shout to make himself heard above that awful racket of a continuous banging of tiles on tables. Can anybody make his calculations from this? My own senses are reeling. I cannot think—I am dazed by this uproar.

Rat, rat, rat! The pent-up passion of 400 mah jongg fiends let loose, and the devil, as the evil genius behind it all, to pay.

SIGNBOARDS

"Mahjongg as a recreation!" reads the inspiring message from the sign-board above each doorway. "No matter how much you bring, irrespective of whether your stakes are set at $10, $5, or even a dollar, you are welcome! So very encouraging to the fearless ones! 'Coffee and tea provided free' this in big characters, 'COMMISSION PAYABLE IN ADVANCE!' in even bigger characters."

Inside space can only be spared for mah jongg tables,—no other room except the minimum required for a gangway in the middle running down between the two rows of tables.

The Master of Ceremonies, here duplicated by two ev'-looking attendants, tugs suggestively at our coat-ends. "We have players for both five and two dollar games, whichever you may prefer," they say, indicating two or three unhappy-looking individuals hovering in the offing. "Only if you want a big game, you are invited to higher up."

And so it was. Up in the cockloft, it was $5. Higher up, into the first floor, through a communicating door specially cut into the wall, it was $10. Our prestige as a custom mounted in ratio to each step ascended. Here, in the upper strata of mah jongg society, we should hold no community of interests with the proletarian left far below.

TWO "GENTLEMEN"

Two gentlemen in long coats came forward to meet us. Two crooks with one common idea: they are so eager to meet us that they nearly fall over each other. "What is your precious surname? Same as mine, really? Marvelous, absolutely! Great

SICK COLONEL CALLS FOR HIS JAILED SON—

The Tower Officer

Bristol, November 1.

A colonel is being nursed back to health by his devoted wife, following his collapse three and a half years ago when his officer-son was cashiered and ordered five years' penal servitude.

Sophie Tucker Stoned In East End

Stones were thrown at Miss Sophie Tucker, the Jewish-American stage star, outside the Troxy Cinema, Commercial Road, London, where she is appearing, during recent disturbances.

One stone struck her on the arm and another hit the fur collar of her coat.

She was uninjured, but very disturbed by the incident.

Miss Tucker said to a Home paper representative: "The stones were thrown by two men who vanished down an alleyway. I had just gone down and stood from the stage door when I felt a stone hit my arm."

"Another hit me higher up, and if it had not been for the fur collar of my coat it would have struck my face."

After the incident Miss Tucker went on to do her stage show.

"IMPLICIT FAITH"

Mrs. Baillie Wright's hair, once grey-coloured, was now streaked with grey, but there was happiness in her eyes as she talked of her son's release.

"Whatever our boy's critics may say," she said, "my husband and I have implicit faith in his innocence."

"When he has finished his sentence he will certainly not seek to change his name. He will only ask for a fair start in life."

Two Famous Peace Men In War of Words

"MR. H.G. WELLS REFUSES TO KNOW"

—Professor Murray

A DUEL is in progress between two great advocates of peace, Professor Gilbert Murray and Mrs. H. G. Wells.

FIRST ROUND

Professor Murray writes to the Times to appeal for support for the International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation—a League of Nations offshoot that aims at bringing together literary, artistic and scientific activities in the interests of peace.

SECOND ROUND

Mr. Wells writes to the Times to ask whether such a committee really exists.

"It has," he says, "a seat in Paris, but so far as I am able to ascertain, only for repose. Is it anything more than a phantom with postal address? For years I have been trying to find out what are its activities."

"It has an imposing list of names of great specialised distinction associated with it, but I cannot discover the faintest initiative arising out of that association."

"Dr. Murray calls the committee a 'slow and modest but almost unique instrument of good-will.' The uncharitable might find harder adjectives."

THIRD ROUND

Professor Murray to the News Chronicle: "Mr. Wells's letter is perfect nonsense. He has always refused to know anything about the committee. I doubt if he has read any of our publications. He has been invited to meetings but has never turned up."

"I suppose he is hasty about something or other. He is very much against the League of Nations just now."

"The committee has done an immense amount of work. For example, when the Chinese Government told us they wanted to undertake a system of national education and asked for our advice we sent out an expedition of five educational experts to China to advise them."

"One never knows what Mr. Wells is going to say."

Now Mr. Wells is sharpening his pencil.

ANTACID— it Checks Decay

SQUIBB DENTAL CREAM combats decay and gum irritations right where they begin—in the Danger Zone. This is the area where teeth meet gums, the spaces between teeth and imperfections in the enamel. Here food particles hide away, ferment and form Germ Acids which bring decay and gum irritations.

Squibb Dental Cream gives real, not fancied protection. It is antacid and neutralizes the harmful Germ Acid. At the same time it restores the natural whiteness to teeth without harm to enamel or gums because it contains no grit or astringents. It is agreeably flavored, refreshing and economical.

Decaying teeth frequently allow poisons to filter through the system. Keep fit. Fight decay scientifically—brush daily with Squibb Dental Cream.

CINEMA NOTES

Thirty-five famous stars, past and present, are honoured in one way or another in "Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "The Great Ziegfeld," in which William Powell plays the great impresario, with Myrna Loy as Billie Burke and Luise Rainer as Anna Held. The picture, hailed as the "Sensation of the Century," opens today at the King's and Alhambra theatres. Since it is impossible to place all of the former stage stars in the picture, Hunt Stromberg, the producer, William Anthony McGuire, the author, and Roger Z. Leonard, the director, devised novel methods in which to pay tribute to the great names of the theatre.

A few appear on themselves in the picture. Among these are Fannie Brice, one of the greatest comedienne of the Broadway stage, Harriet Hooton, celebrated dancer, and Ray Bolger, nicknamed—"Rubber Legs" Bolger, because of his infinitesimal eccentric dancing. Those who appear through impersonators include Anna Held, Sandow, Bert Williams, Nat Wills, Lew Dockstader, Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, the Fairbanks Twins, Joseph Urban and Irving Berlin, others honoured by musical numbers include, George White, John Steele, Eddie Cantor and Van Schenck. Tribute is paid to Henry Miller, William Faversham, May Robson, William Russell, Marie Dressler, Richard Mansfield and James A. Herne. In theatre programs flashed upon the screen, Hoey and Evans, comedy team, are remembered in an electric sign. Sophie Tucker, Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth have dressing room doors dedicated to them.

"Girls' Dormitory"

One of the most important cinema event in years will take place tomorrow, at the Queen's Theatre, when an exciting new personality, Simone Simon (pronounced See-mone See-mone), makes her debut in the Twentieth Century-Fox production, "Girls' Dormitory". Warm, young, refreshing and vital, with distinct magnetic appeal and rare, strange beauty, Miss Simon is being acclaimed the most important discovery in recent screen history. Herbert Marshall and Ruth Chatterton are starred with her, in an exceptional cast that features Constance Collier, J. Edward Bromberg, Dixie Dunbar, John Qualen and Shirley Decane. The film is set in an exclusive boarding school. Herbert Marshall is the director of the school. Ruth Chatterton, Constance Collier, J. Edward Bromberg, are important members of the faculty. "Girls' Dormitory" was especially chosen for Simone's first Hollywood picture. Irving Cummings directed the production, with Raymond Griffith associate producer.

"Suzy" at the Oriental

There is deceiving simplicity in the title of the picture, "Suzy" to be seen at the Oriental Theatre tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday with Jean Harlow in the title role. The story is based on the novel by Herbert Gorman. Franchot Tone and Cary Grant appear in the unique narrative as the two husbands of an American show girl stranded in London just before the war. Miss Harlow unquestionably reaches the high note in her glamourous career as a star. In sympathetic London she meets a young inventor and marries him. He is not under peculiar circumstances which point to her guilt. Terrified in the belief that he is dead, she escapes to Paris and there, after the war is raging, marries

POLICEMEN IN KILTS

Although no new terror for speeding motorists, by blacking them with the pillock instead of gonging them, is contemplated, Melbourne's police force are forming a Scottish pipe band.

It will be the first in the world to be composed wholly of policemen.

The force is already contributing to a shilling fund to buy the uniforms, complete with kilts, which will cost £200. Twelve pipers, six drummers and the drum major, a senior constable, will comprise the band. All are Scotsmen or of Scottish descent, says Austral News. They will play in competitions and for charities, without considering at the moment, possible eventualities.

Unexpected Energy

When the under-dog begins to go under . . . after being saved by the bell several times . . . and it looks certain that the next time he won't get up . . . but he does . . . just as the round ends . . . and then calmly and coolly he opens the next round as fresh as a daisy . . . and proceeds to knock the Champ out with a well-placed right. Then is the time, as the French say, to "cherchez la soudaine energie" . . . or, "look for the sudden energy."

But you won't have to go to all this effort to find this unexpected energy. It is always waiting in a glass of cool U.B. Beer. Of course, there is far more in U.B. Beer than just this unexpected energy. It is this, however, coupled with the wholesome quality of U.B., the flavour, and uniformity, that makes U.B. "Beer at its Best."

40TH ANNIVERSARY OF SENIOR SHIELD TOURNAMENT

First Round Ties Dominate Week-End Soccer Fixtures

MYSTERY POLICE TEAM

Navy's New Forward PROSPECTS

(By "Veritas")

Forty years ago the Hong Kong Football Association's Senior Shield competition was inaugurated, and was won for the first time by H.M.S. Centurion. Since then it has been competed for yearly with the exception of 1917 and 1918, and during that long period the competition has naturally grown in size and importance.

To-day it is regarded as about the most important event of our local football season, and this season has attracted an entry of 14 teams.

The Junior Shield, a competition of the comparatively tender age of 13 years, first came into being in 1923 and was won by the 2nd Battalion King's Regiment, and it is a point of interest to observe that with only two exceptions the trophy has been won yearly by either military or navy teams. Chinese Athletic in 1928, and again in 1930, has been the only civilian team to carry off the shield.

This year the competition has attracted a huge entry of 23 teams, and Royal Engineers, who are holders, are faced with a stiff task to retain their treasure.

DOMINATE PROGRAMME

This week-end, senior and junior shield matches dominate the local football programme. This afternoon there are three matches in both competitions down for decision, while to-morrow a further five games will be played.

During the week it was inadvertently stated in these columns that South China "B" were the holders of the senior trophy, whereas South China "A" enjoy that distinction. The Caroline Hill senior outfit beating Police in the final last year.

As observed before, South China "A" have a pretty hard row to hoe, starting first with the Royal Navy and then, if successful, going on to meet either Kowloon or Royal Ulster Rifles.

Nevertheless it must be conceded that on present form the holders have a very fair chance of carrying out on top again this year. Their most serious contenders, if league form is to be our guide, are the R.R., Fusiliers, Kowloon Chinese, South China "B", Navy and Club, with St. Joseph's a very good outsider.

As some of these teams clash in the first round a good deal of eliminating will have been accomplished by to-morrow evening and one will be in a better position to form judgment.

"HUSH HUSH" POLICE POLICY

Because of the different elements which always seem to pervade cup ties, one hesitates to name the probable winners, and I rather think (Continued on Page 5.)

REPORTS FROM THE CAMPS

Hard Blow For Club

(By "Veritas")

Club have suffered a stroke of bad luck for their Shield tie with Kowloon Chinese to-day. Farrow, centre-half, has gone down with Malaria, while Brown is still unavailable.

In consequence several positional changes have been made. Hill is returning to the defence and will play at left back with Strange on the right.

Gilchrist, former Kowloon player and now in the Club second eleven, has been brought in at centre-half, with Nichols transferred to right half and Ernest Strange back on the left flank.

Wilson and Fleming are also changing places, Wilson going to inside-right. It is believed this experiment will tend towards a livelier attack.

SOUTH CHINA "A" UNDECIDED

About Their Final Line-Up

South China "A" are not yet decided about their final line-up against Navy to-morrow.

The forward line will be Tao Kwei-shing, Lai Shui-wing, Fung King-cheung, Ip Pak-wa and Tay Qua-lin; and Pau Ku-ping will operate between the sticks.

But the half back line and the full backs have not been settled. Li Tin-sang, Lau Mau and Tam Kong have been nominated for the full back positions, while Lau Hing-choi, Wong Mee-shun, Lee Kwok-wai and Leung Wing-chit are in line for inclusion as half backs. But the final team will not be

NAVY HAVE NEW FORWARD

Said To Be First Class Man

Navy have included a new inside-right against South China "A", one Muggerden, said to be an ex-Navy representative player in England.

He is a newcomer to the China Station so that his present form is not actually known. However the selectors have complete faith in his proving to be a decided asset, so South China had better beware.

Baxter has been transferred back to the right wing, while McLeod continues to lead the line with Wade on his left. The intermediate line is unchanged, while Harris will play with Wolverson in the rear division.

This team is expected to give a very good account of itself.

feet concealed shot. Vines used the forecourt much oftener than in the first two matches. This was probably because he knew his ground strokes were not entirely satisfactory. But it meant a general speeding up of the game and a much more enter-taining spectacle.

I doubt very much whether Tilden will ever play much better than he did during those first three sets yesterday. He fell away at the last because he had more or less expended all his energy. But before he fizzled out spectators were given some real idea of the greatness of the player. His keen tennis mind was working all the time, and although Vines was a bit plainer with his ground strokes, he still trailed far behind the famous maestro when it came to variety of shot.

When one realizes that the players had only just left the ship after a tempestuous trip up from Manila, their exhibition was par excellence, and something for which Hongkong has good reason to feel thankful.

It was good to see improved arrangements regarding linesmen, and although Tilden did not always see eye to eye with some of the decisions, on the whole the officials carried out their job with credit. The calling was quick and distinct, and with Mr. Eddie de Sousa functioning as an ideal umpire, there were no cause for complaints in the controlling of the match.

H.M.S. Dorsetshire is due in harbour on Monday.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS

The success of evening dress depends on correctness that is up-to-the-minute—and correctness depends on detail.

That is the secret of Mackintosh's dress clothes. In white waistcoats for instance, you have a choice of various lengths in each fitting. Evening shirts with two sleeve lengths, (linen or marcella fronts). Six styles of dress collars in quarter sizes—four to every inch. Dress ties for every size as well as every style of collar.

The result is dress clothes that fit perfectly, look exactly right and feel superbly comfortable.

Nearly Snatch Victory
At PokfulamINTERESTING GAMES
THIS AFTERNOON

On Saturday last there was a complete blank in the League matches for the Senior Division.

A couple of non-League games were played. At the Civil Service Club the Army made 150 for 5 wickets declared and I am told that Corporal Johnson made an excellent 54. He is said to be a very useful Saturday afternoon batsman. Garthwaite and Peters also made runs. The Civil Service made 114 for 5, Sayer scoring 38 and Griffiths 24. It is unfortunate for the Civil Service that, I understand, Sayer does not wish to play in League cricket this year.

At Pokfulam the Navy team again were beaten, though only by one wicket. Gosano did nothing special with the ball and in view of the bowlers who took wickets I am afraid the Navy batting is utterly unsound. For University Ng (40) and Gosano (39) made the majority of their 137 for 9 wickets. March bowled well.

It was unfortunate that the K.C.C., I.R.C., C.C.C. and H.K.C.C. had no matches although, as a prominent player remarked to me, it is pleasant sometimes to have a Saturday afternoon off.

THE JUNIOR DIVISION

One of the most surprising matches in the Junior Division was played between the Civil Service and the Indians Second XI. Strange played an excellent innings of 61 and Westlake hit gallantly for 32. The rest did little.

Against a total of 124 Barra and Kitchell made 31 and 56 respectively. They were, however, very slow and when they started to go for the runs wickets fell rapidly. They just pulled it off in the last over with only two wickets to spare. All eight men were bowled, Ling taking 5 for 40 and Westlake 3 for 49.

The Civil Servants are going on and would do very well if they had a bit more batting. They were unlucky to find Kitchell against them. He is a first eleven player but has been uneven and was being tried out to see if he was fit. He was, I see he is playing for the first to-day.

The Police, as I expected, crushed Recrelo. Their batting seems very strong. The University made a sporting declaration at 128 for 8 (McKenzie 5 for 18) and the Kowloon Second, thanks to Baxter, Durne and Baldwin, knocked the runs off for two wickets.

At King's Park slow batting cost the Army A any chance of a victory. I am told that they batted until nearly half past four but Baker, who made 93, was as slow at the end as at the beginning. The Navy had no earthly chance of making the runs and played out time.

At Happy Valley the Army B beat Craigengower Second easily. Slipp hit splendidly to force a win. There was also a plethora of runs on the Club ground when Army C made 106 for 9 declared. Whitehead, who has been on the fringe of the first eleven for some long time made

I.R.C. LOSE F. D.
PEREIRAIs Under Doctor's Orders

It was brought to my notice this morning, writes R. Abbit, since writing about the I.R.C. v. University first division match prospects, that Frank Pereira, the Indians' fast bowler, is under doctor's orders and will not be playing to-day.

In fact it is very unlikely that he will play again this season.

In view of this loss, the chances of the I.R.C. beating University must be somewhat qualified.

108. The Club, however, thanks to Gabagan, Agnew and Bathurst gave them an awful fright as they had 190 for 7 wickets when night fell.

TO-DAY'S GAMES

There is a completely full programme in-day in the first division. Civil Service should win or draw with Craigengower. Kowloon will, I think, beat the Navy, while the University will almost certainly go down to I.R.C. unless anything amazing happens. The Hongkong Cricket Club will almost certainly draw with the Army if they have a full side out. In each game I have mentioned the home side first.

SECOND DIVISION

In the second, or junior, division Craigengower should beat the Civil Service but there may be an upset. I suspect draws between Navy and Kowloon, Army B and H.K.C.C. and perhaps Police and Army C. I.R.C. should beat the University and I fancy Recrelo although playing at home will go down to Army B.

The most interesting game to watch will be that between K.C.C. and the Navy. If the latter do not stage a comeback I am afraid that we shall have to admit that the pretty general opinion that they would be one of the leading sides this year will take its place with so many other pre-Season prognostications.

CRICKET XI

The following will represent Ricci Hall in a friendly cricket match against the Sharebrokers' Association at the University ground, Pokfulam, to-morrow (Sunday), starting at 1 p.m. sharp.

OPIUM CASE EVIDENCE
SHIPS' OFFICERS
PROVE CUSTOM

Hearing of the evidence in the case in which James Johnston, 42, Chief Officer of the Macao river vessel Chuen Chow, is charged on four counts of possession and importation of opium, was concluded before Mr. K. Keen at Central Magistrate yesterday.

Johnston made his first appearance in court on November 13, when he was charged with (a) importing 72 taels of raw opium on the steamer Chuen Chow, (b) possession of 72 taels of raw opium, (c) importing 18 taels of prepared opium, and (d) possession of 18 taels of prepared opium.

The alleged offence took place on the Chuen Chow on November 11. Bail was fixed at $6,000 and the first hearing was on Wednesday.

Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios is appearing for defendant, and Mr. J. Abbott, Assistant Crown Solicitor, represents the prosecution.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Remedios yesterday, Mr. F. S. Elliott said he had known defendant almost as long as he, witness, had been in the Colony—a matter of about 12 years. He was not in the habit of visiting him on board ship, but he had gone on the Hoi Ching when defendant was on that ship and he was aware that it was a common practice among ships' officers to carry parcels for their friends from port to port. Witness had had one parcel brought for him in that fashion from Swallow.

Dealing with the events of November 11, Mr. Remedios asked: Before you proceeded to the Chuen Chow, was there any suggestion by the defendant that you should come on board to carry a parcel for him? Witness: No.

Witness related that he went on board with his wife and they were in defendant's cabin, where they were joined a few minutes later by Sergeant Davies. There was some conversation by defendant on a picture that had appeared of him in a magazine dealing with his rescue of a Chinese at sea, and defendant took the magazine from a drawer and handed it to witness. Defendant then handed him the parcel, but witness could not be sure whether it was from the same drawer, and said: "I have forgotten to hand this to Mr. Bennett. Will you take it to the Club until Mr. Bennett calls for it."

Policeman Present

He asked you in the presence of the police officer, to hand over this parcel?—Yes.

Are you perfectly certain that the parcel you took to the Revenue Officers was the same parcel handed to you by defendant?—Yes.

There is no possibility of it having been changed when you were sitting having tea in the China Emporium?—It was impossible.

Are you certain that the parcel was wrapped in an English paper and not a Chinese?—Yes.

Did you board the ship on November 12 with Mr. Grimmett?—No.

My instructions are that you were there shortly before I was not. And that you told defendant that the parcel fell and broke open and the opium came out?—I did not.

You have been in the police force?—I served five years in the Hongkong Police Force.

In spite of that you still had to take the parcel to your father-in-law, Mr. Goring, to ask him what it contained?—I asked him what it was.

I have never seen raw opium but I have seen prepared opium in tins.

If you had any suspicion that the parcel contained opium, do you think it was your duty to burst open the parcel in that way? At least there should be some evidence as to what the parcel was like so that we could identify it.

Witness said that that was the only way he could see the contents.

Mrs. Elliott's Evidence

Mrs. Elliott then gave evidence corroborative of her husband's, but said she did not notice at first whether the parcel was wrapped in a Chinese or an English newspaper. Later she said she was certain it was the latter, because she found it in the house.

Mr. Remedios: Why do you contradict yourself?

Witness: I am rather short sighted.

Mrs. Elliott agreed that the parcel came from the same drawer as the magazine.

Sergeant Davies stated that he was a member of the Water Police and searched the ship, passengers and baggage just before it sailed. He then went into defendant's cabin and handed him the usual Prevention of Piracy Ordinance chit. In the cabin were Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, to whom he had been introduced by defendant a few minutes before. The three of them left together, and just before they did so, defendant handed the parcel to Mr. Elliott, with the request for its delivery. Witness did not notice the wrapping of the parcel.

In reply to Mr. Remedios, witness agreed that defendant's cabin was not locked and he could have searched it at any time, "if my suspicions had been roused."

Inspector A. L. Hopkins deposed that he was on duty in the Central Police Station charge room when defendant was brought in on November 12 and charged. In reply to all questions, he replied: "I am not guilty."

This concluded the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Remedios said the onus was on the defendant to disprove the suggestion in Section 38 of the Ordinance, in which any person in possession of opium shall be deemed to have knowledge of that fact unless the contrary was proved.

"It is up to me to prove that the defendant was not aware at the time that the particular parcel handed to Mr. Elliott contained opium. I will proceed to do so by calling defendant himself and Capt. T. L. Brown," he continued.

Defendant Testifies

Defendant then gave evidence that he had been Chief Officer on the Chuen Chow for 19 months up to November 12, and prior to that, had served on Douglas and Wo Fat Shing Company steamers.

Mr. Remedios: Is it a common practice for officers to carry parcels for their acquaintances?—Yes, especially on the Douglas boats.

Did you ever inquire what the parcels were?—No. Many officers would come to their cabin and find their bunks full of parcels.

When you joined the Chuen Chow, did you continue to do this for your friends?—Yes, and for big firms too.

Continuing, witness said, he gave the magazine with his picture in it to Mr. Elliott, and then saw the parcel he had forgotten to deliver.

Whom was the parcel for?—It was not addressed, but I was asked to deliver it to Mr. Bennett.

Who is this Mr. Bennett and where can he be found?—At the Hongkong Hotel.

Is he known as Mr. Chester Bennett?—Yes.

He was a friend of yours?—I met him in Macao.

Was he in the habit of going with you to the R.A.O.B. Club?—No, he has only been there once.

Who asked for this parcel to be taken down for him?—Mr. Kwok, a contractor in Macao.

Have you often taken parcels down for him?—Yes, several times. Mostly fish and crabs.

Did Mr. Kwok tell you what was in the parcel?—No. He said books and small stuff.

So far as you can recollect, what was the parcel wrapped in?—I am not certain, but I think it was Chinese newspaper.

What other parcels have you brought down?—Some for the Malcom Company and for the Sun Life of Canada and others.

Cross-Examined

You have heard now that this particular parcel contained opium?—If I had known then that it contained opium, do you think I would have handed it over to a man who has been in the Police Force and in front of Sergeant Davies, who doesn't let much go by him?

It is said you said that if Mr. Bennett did not call for the parcel, you would call yourself?—Yes, as he had only been to the Club once, I naturally arranged to see if he would have called for it.

It is inferred by the prosecution that you took Mr. Elliott aboard for the purpose of getting him to deliver that parcel?—No, I had forgotten all about it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Abbott:

Who is this Mr. Kwok and how long have you known him?—He is a building contractor and I have known him three or four months. He has been a passenger several times.

He appears to have had a profitable side-line in smuggling opium?—Yes, a good way of doing it, I should imagine.

Does he bear you any grudge?—Not that I know of.

It looks rather like it?—Yes.

Witness said Kwok told him a parcel would be sent on board for him to deliver, and it was brought next morning by a boy and witness put it in his cabin. He assumed it was the same parcel, as he had not been asked by anybody else to take care of it.

Did you speak to Mr. Kwok in Chinese?—I cannot speak Chinese at all. It takes me all my time to speak English.

Did you tell him that you knew Mr. Bennett?—He has seen us together at Macao when Mr. Bennett was living there.

Witness added that the previous night, Mr. Kwok had brought a parcel which appeared to be a small suitcase and asked him to give it to Mr. Bennett. That parcel was too big to put in a drawer and was left on the floor of his cabin. Mr. Bennett called for that parcel and took it away himself.

How did he know it was going to be there for him?—I don't know.

Forgot Mail Once

He just walked on board and took it?—Yes. I asked him to wait for me as I was dressing, and he took me in taxi as far as Blake Pier. From there I went to the R.A.O.B. Club.

Mr. Bennett did not remind you that you had a parcel for him?—No, and I never thought about it.

Do you often forget things?—Yes, I have taken parcels up and down several times for remembering them. Once I forgot a bag of mail that was left in a corner.

Mr. Bennett is a more or less permanent resident of the Hongkong Hotel.

Then why did you not ask Mr. Elliott to deliver the parcel there instead of at the Club?—Because Mr. Elliott was going to the Club.

Is Mr. Bennett a member of the Club?—No.

Why should he go there?—He knows I am always there and might ask the boy if there was a parcel for him. Otherwise I could collect it myself next time and take it to him.

Did you know that Mr. Elliott might be searched by Revenue Officers on the wharf?—Yes, the same as anybody is liable to be searched.

I would not be mean enough to hand anybody a parcel with contraband in it.

Witness said he did not suggest the prosecution's witnesses were lying, but he took so little notice of the parcel that he could not say what the wrapping of the parcel was.

Capt. Brown Called

Capt. T. L. Brown, Master of the Chuen Chow, said he had been over 20 years on the China Coast and had often carried parcels for friends.

Sometimes people he did not know sent parcels aboard with chits attached. He knew defendant as an efficient officer, and had known no talk of contraband while with him on the Chuen Chow.

Mr. Remedios: With due respect, you might have found yourself in the same unfortunate position as he is to-day?—There is that possibility.

Was he nervous when he was arrested?—He merely said he had a complete answer to the charges, and asked me to get a man to fill his job temporarily.

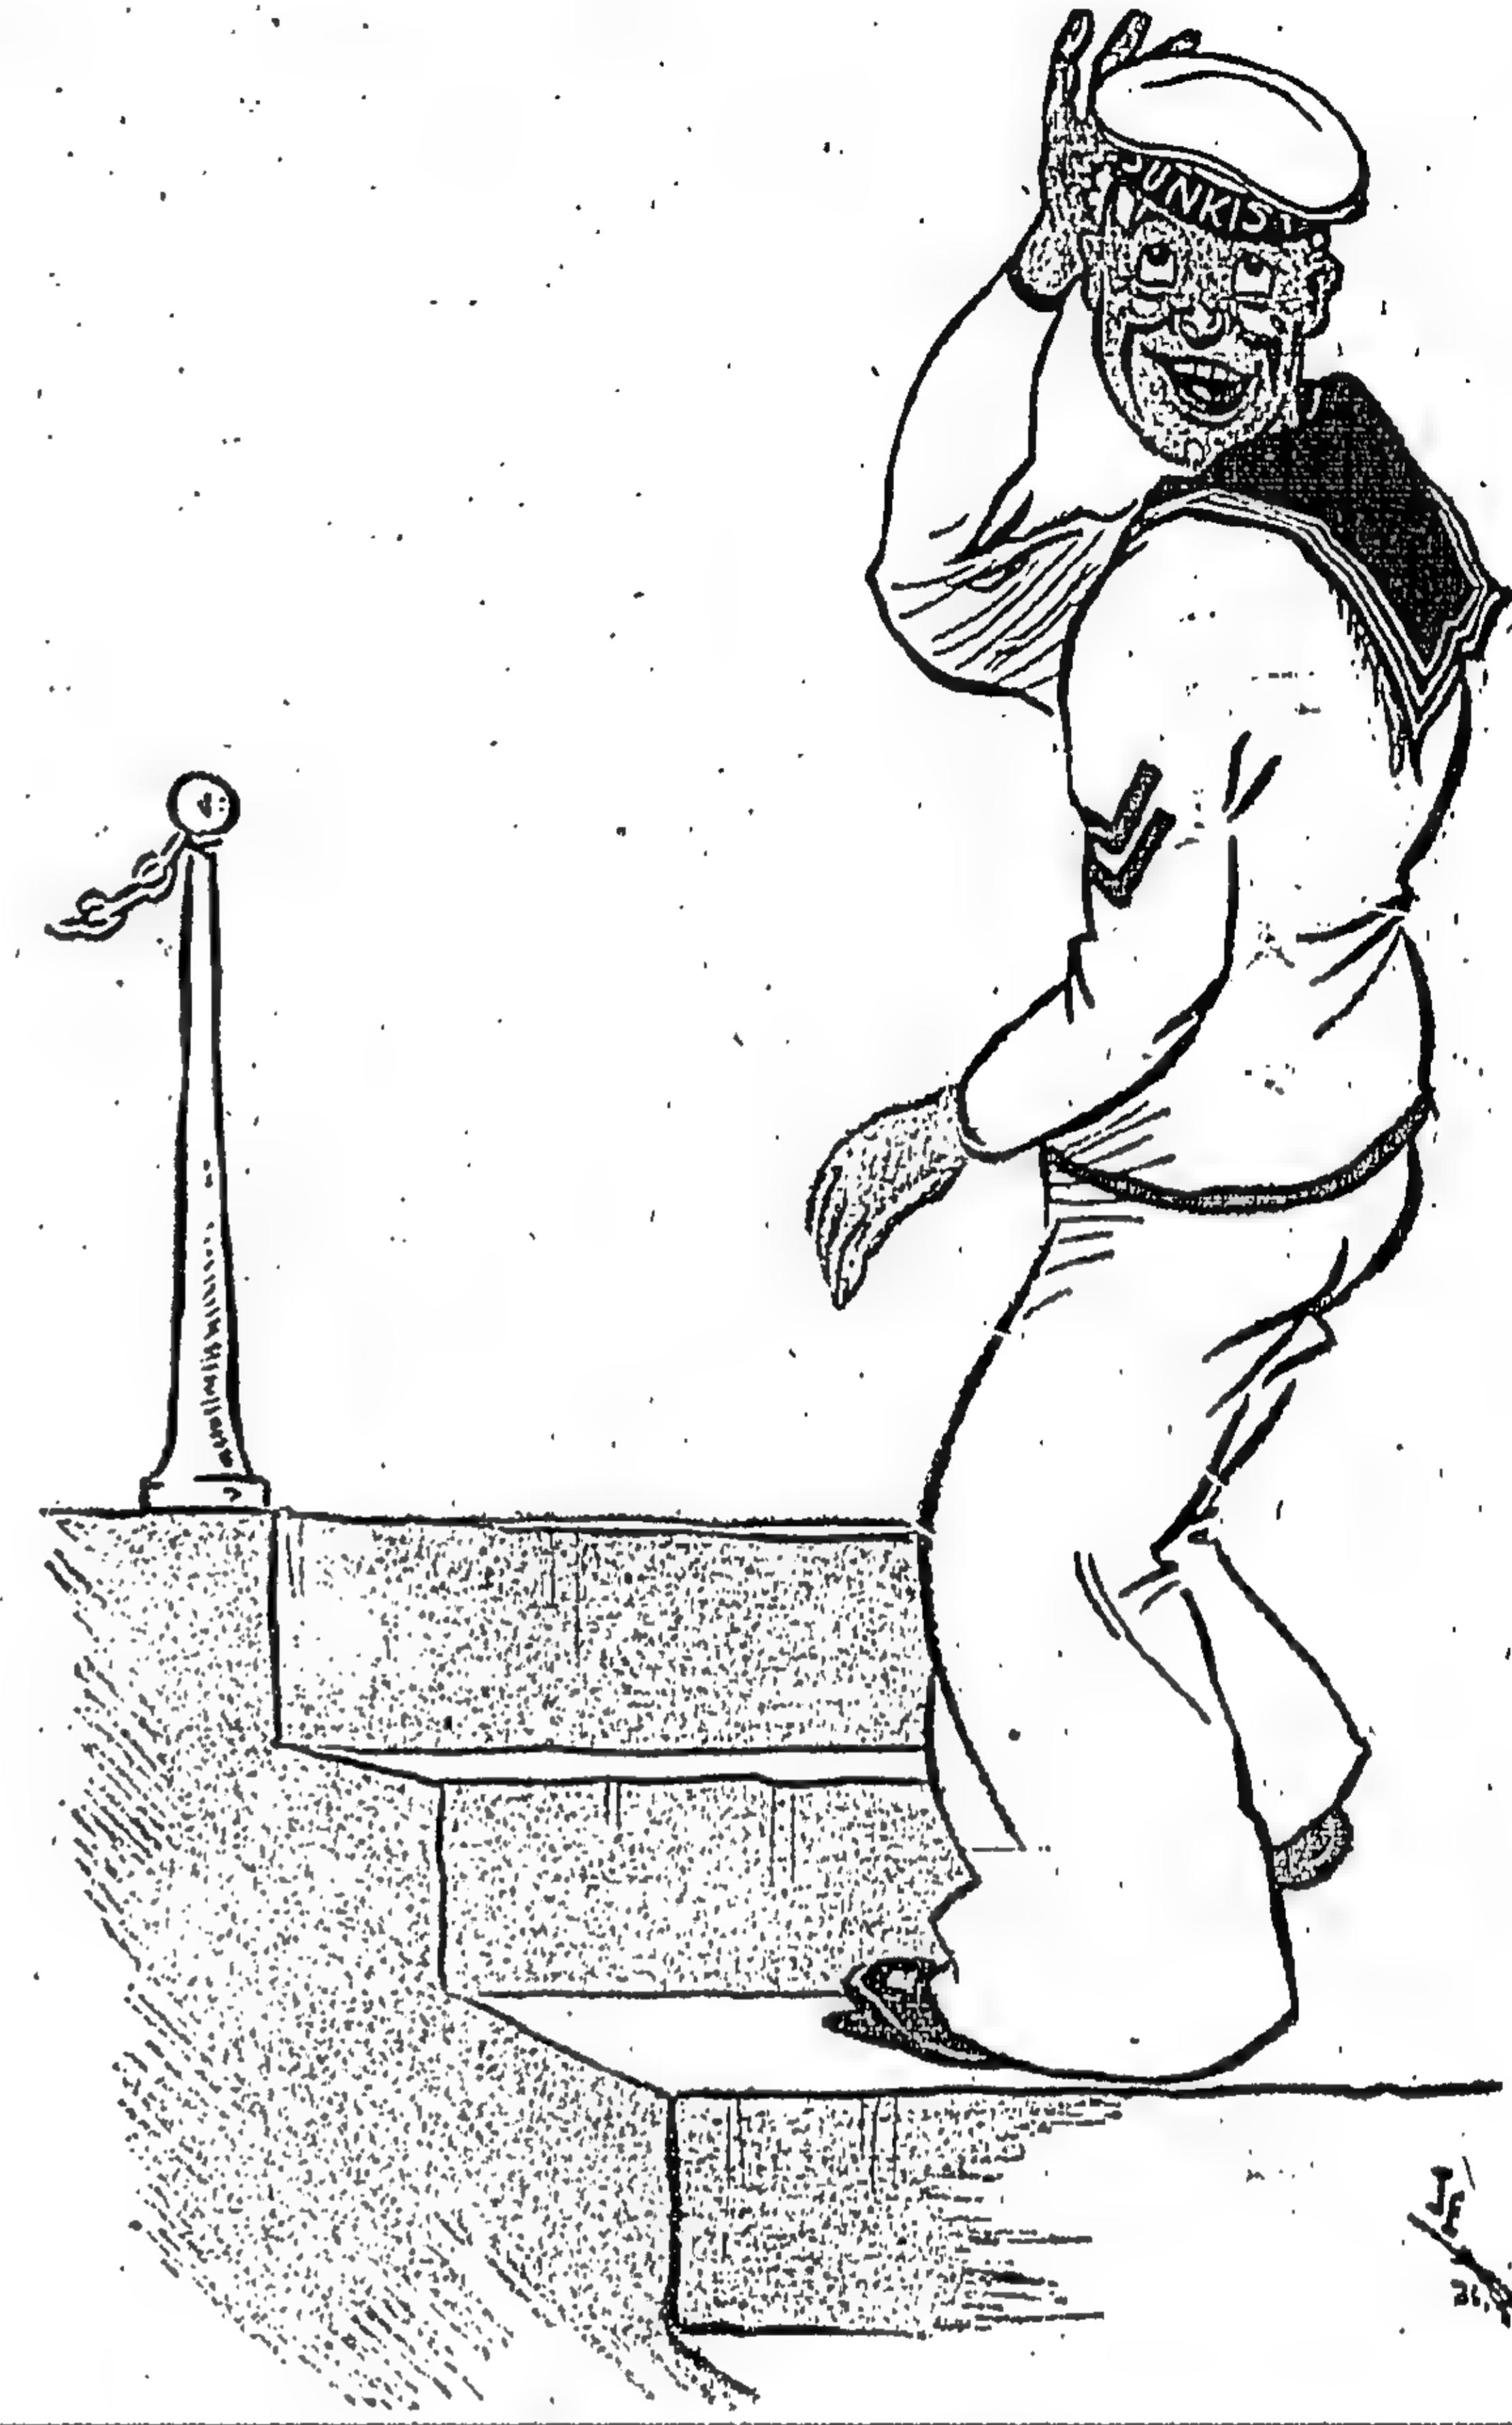

Cross-examined by Mr. Abbott, witness agreed that people who sent parcels by ships' officers did not pay postage or freight charges, but he did not think they had any idea of "pecuniary gain."

The case was adjourned at this stage.

ANNUAL DINNER OF R.A.M.C. ASSOCIATION

BRILLIANT FUNCTION AT HOTEL CECIL

The Hongkong Branch of the Royal Army Medical Corps Association held its annual dinner last night at the Hotel Cecil in the presence of over 150 members and guests, who were all happily entertained up to mid-night with a musical concert after dinner. In a speech, Lieut. Col. S.D. Reid, M.B., R.A.M.C. stressed that the object of the association is mainly to maintain and foster the friendship between the present and past members by organizing reunions and social functions.

The decorations with coloured lights, greenery and bunting made the hotel entrance and the dining hall very attractive; while, surrounding the entrance, a high red cross displayed with illuminations, was an object which tended to warm the spirit of a united brotherhood and make the members proud of their profession.

The party assembled in the lounge at 8 p.m. where first "Feld dressings" were issued in the form of cocktails and "Small chow."

On the sound of the Regimental call and "cockhouse" at 9.30 p.m. the company repaired to the dining hall, where full justice was done to a most excellent repast provided by Mr. Chin Wui-chuen, the Hotel Manager. Aids to digestion were provided in the form of light music rendered by the 1st Bn. The Royal Ulster Rifles before and during the dinner, by kind permission of Major H. Mc. Morrison, M.C., and Officers,

Colonel's Speech

The Loyal toast was proposed by Col. H. H. Blake, M.C., and that of the Association by Lieut. Col. S. D. Reid, who said:

Gentlemen—I do not wish to curtail the pleasure of the evening by a long speech, but I would like to remind you of the objects of the Association, one of which is to organize periodical reunions and social functions for the mutual benefit of members. In so doing we are developing and maintaining a friendly spirit between present and past members, which undoubtedly fosters that spirit of the Corps so essential to an organization such as ours.

Friendship and Esprit de Corps mean a united brotherhood which is ever ready to assist one or more of their comrades through a difficult or troublous period. To this end we are endeavouring to raise sufficient funds in reserve in order to render what financial assistance we can to those of our local members who may be in need of such help in the future.

By your own personal efforts and untiring support of your Committee you can do a great deal towards maintaining the objects of the Association, to which we are proud to belong.

Finally, may I take this opportunity to remind you that two As-

Make-up for Amateur Theatricals

By MARY EMBREY

PEOPLE who take part in amateur dramatic performances have, if they are women and are properly cared for their skin; a very natural feeling that, when it comes to the dress rehearsal, they are offering their defenceless faces on the altar of duty.

The "make-up box," usually a communal affair, with its sticks of greasepaint, its tin of theatrical cream, its hair's lost, cotton wool and invariably leaking boxes of powder, is not an appealing sight for the woman who is fastidious about her cosmetics.

In the best of conditions, when each actor and actress has his or her own outfit, the application of greasepaint is something to shudder at; for it is by no means the best thing for the skin.

In the past few months, however, all that has been changed. An internationally famous beauty specialist is now adding to her fame by the production of what is known as the Hollywood series of make-up preparations for the stage.

These products have so many advantages over the old system that they are already being used for colour film make-up, and are destined to revolutionise stage make-up.

So Easy to Remove

The first advantage is that the preparations are so naturalistic and non-greasy that you can go straight from the stage to join your friends at a party without the bother of removing your make-up. All you need do is to dust on more powder to tone down the rouge and wipe off any excess of lipstick and eye-shadow.

This, of course, applies only to those who are not playing a character part. They, of course, will have applied over the lids on top of this. Beneath the eyes the "liner" simply emphasises the lower lashes by a thin line painted immediately beneath them.

A special, very fine powder should be chosen. Do not use cotton wool but get a lamb's wool puff and have it full of powder, which should be pressed evenly into the skin. The surplus can be removed with a swansdown puff used lightly in a downward direction.

Eyebrows and Lashes

Finally, touch up lashes and brows with mascara or a lash cream and apply lip-stick.

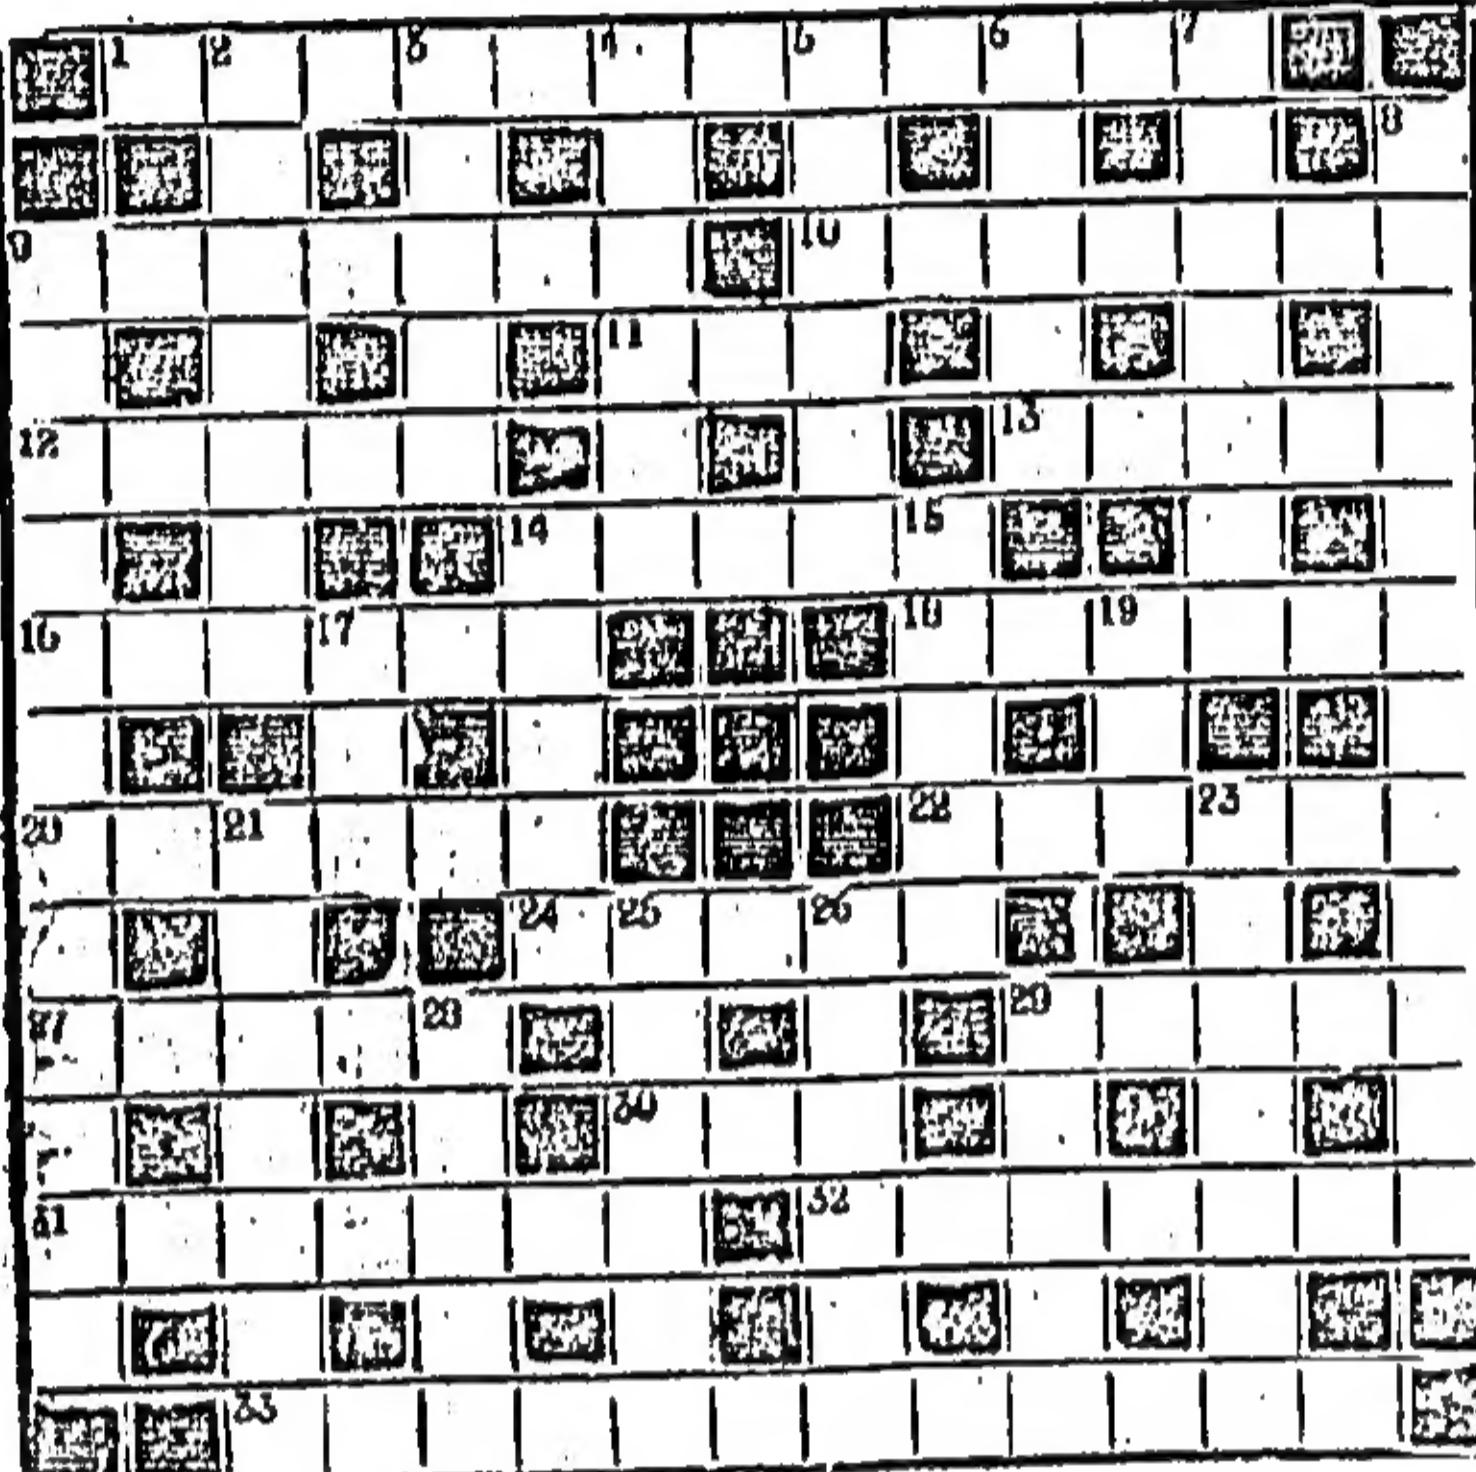

For eyebrows and lashes choose a blue-black shade, unless you are almost platinum fair. The special stage lipstick gives a shiny appearance and does not tend to look black behind the footlights.

For the stage, as for ordinary make-up, the whole emphasis is on eyes and mouth. Cupid's-bow lips are out of favour, and unless the mouth is exceptionally large the lipstick should be carried right to the corners and should be applied between the lips as well. They should then be pressed together to set the colour.

A good, light cleansing cream is all that is necessary for the removal of the make-up when the day is done.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS are a mixed joy when it comes to making up (Drawing by Cockayne.)

Proverbs for Parents

By Margaret Cole

THERE are few people who have not acquired certain pet proverbs or sayings which seem to them to express profound truths, and which they mutter to themselves, like a kind of incantation, in cases of emergency.

I know that I have; and among them are a few which, in the course of writing these articles and replying to correspondents, strike me as peculiarly applicable either to the problems of parents or to the advice and instructions which parents give their children.

First among them is an innocent and homely proverb, "Don't keep a dog and bark yourself."

Many parents—and among them the most conscientious and hard-working—inflict on themselves an infinity of distress through not having absorbed this truth.

If you are going to run your entire house and family yourself, well and good; but if you employ a cook or a nurse or send your children to school, why try to do the cook's or the nurse's or the school's job for them?

I do not mean that one should not interfere or supervise at all; nor do I mean that one may not actually be a better cook than the cook, or nurse than the nurse.

But one merely becomes an irritant if one cannot leave the household to itself without wondering all the time whether the cook is not burning the puddings or the nurse remembering to see that the children take their mackintoshes out on showery days.

A woman must be prepared to trust people without fussing, and to leave something to chance—and if mistakes are made which she would not have made herself, they are not generally irrevocable.

This is a saying which is mainly meant for parents. The second, "Don't cross your bridges till you come to them," is aimed at the happiness of the young as much as of their elders.

There are, of course, a good many children who are perfectly serene and happy-go-lucky, who take what comes to them without worrying in advance.

But there are many, both children and adults, who—like the White Queen—are always bemoaning a disaster which may occur next week. They reflect on what would happen if they lost their job; or—if they should not finish their arithmetic in time, or if there came a thunderstorm and they hadn't got a coat, or if—a whole lot of ifs.

Many of us can recollect quite clearly periods of such agonised anticipation in our own childhood—anticipation of something which either never happened, or, if it did, was much less disastrous in its consequences than we had imagined.

One cannot stop a nervous child from worrying; but its parents can help it to a considerable extent if they have their own nerves under control and can teach it how to discount its own fears and to realise how few of them are fulfilled. They can point out that while one cannot always help being irrationally distressed, one can realise, with a part of one's mind, that it is irrational, and will quite likely pass.

Rudyard Kipling in one of the "Just So Stories," has a phrase which deserves to be better known. That," he says to the Elephant's child, who is distressed by the language of his interlocutor, "That is how Bi-coloured Python Rock-Snakes always talk."

I do not think one can begin too early to realise that people act after their kind, that their modes of expressing themselves and behaving themselves are not one's own—though they may be none the worse for that—and that one will only waste time trying to alter that fact.

Plenty of children, for example, when they go to school, are distressed and confused by the difference between what their teachers say and what is said at home; they feel that one or the other must be wrong.

Here the parent can help by suggesting Kipling's attitude—it may be more comforting, even if a trifle disrespectful, to be able to think of your teacher or your father as a Bi-coloured Python Rock-Snake, without having to believe that he is either wrong or wicked.

For my final saying is Cromwell's, "I beseech you, gentlemen, bethink you before God that you may be mistaken." That is not to say, "Hesitate and do not act," but "Act by all means; but be prepared both to discover and to admit that you were wrong, without falling into despair."

It is one of the most important lessons for a tranquil life—but how few of us have learnt it!

£2,000 DAMAGES FOR COMPOSER

Libel Action Over "Ghost Goes West" Music

MUSIC from the film "The Ghost Goes West" was discussed in the King's Bench Division recently when Mr. Michael Spoliansky, composer, was awarded £2,000 damages in a libel action against the U.C.P. Publishing Company, Ltd., in respect of a charge of plagiarism.

The action was undefended and Mr. Spoliansky was given judgment with costs.

Sir Patrick Hastings, K.C., for Mr. Spoliansky, said that the jury's only task would be to assess damages and, though they might think that whatever amount they awarded might be valueless to the plaintiff, because he might not receive it, it was very important that the amount awarded should be a substantial sum, having regard to the very serious injury which had been done to him.

"THE BANKS AND BRAES"

The music he composed was a little altered by arrangement with his employers and began with the first three or four bars out of the familiar song "The Banks and Braes of Bonnie Scotland."

In the music of the theme song "Star Over the Hills," it was stated:

"The music is by Michael Spoliansky, based on an old Scottish melody."

He had been engaged by Mr. Alexander Korita, and composed the music for "Sanders of the River" and a

PICCARD TURNS TO ROBOT FOR ALTITUDE DATA

Gadgets Designed To Land Unmanned Gas Bags From Stratosphere

Minneapolis, Nov. 17. Prof. Jean Piccard of the University of Minnesota soon will send six unmanned stratosphere balloons into the heavens.

This time the professor will equip each of the top balloons with the gears and springs of an old alarm clock. As he explained, it's practical business, this use of clocks in a stratosphere experiment.

"One of the big troubles," he said, "in sending up balloons is getting them to come down at the proper time. I have worked out a plan that looks like a patch-like affair at the top of the bag."

"String will be attached into the balloon at its peak, with the ends hanging down inside the bag. The string, in turn, will be attached to the clock mechanism and when the alarm goes off, the clock's hammer will rip out the small section, permitting the hydrogen to escape gradually. Then the balloon starts coasting gently to earth."

Prof. Piccard, mustached, long-haired and the veteran of a stratosphere invasion, said that in other tests the bags continued to soar until the sun sets—something that happens in a very short time in the stratosphere. Then the bag would begin diving to earth.

By landing the balloon in the daytime, he said, the chances are much greater that it will be seen from the ground, and its precious cargo of instruments be saved—not dashed against the hard earth or in a tree as in past experiments.

Also the danger of a night pilot plane plowing into one of the bags will be eliminated.

"I shudder to think of what would happen if a plane collided with one of those hydrogen-filled bags," he said.

Prof. Piccard and students of aeronautics at the university have prepared a model balloon 5 feet in diameter on a pattern for the larger bags, which will be 15 feet in diameter and will have a lifting power of about 150 pounds at sea level.

The bags will be pear-shaped with a canopy extending all the way to the tiny gondola which will contain valuable instruments to be carried aloft.

One of the principal aims of the flight will be to learn how low temperatures drop inside the gondola. When this is ascertained, mechanism can be devised to withstand the cold and those instruments in turn will be sent up to get weather information now sought by the scientists.
